Synthetic Food—Perhaps Many "Mentally Dead" Bonus, or Usury? A Mosque in Paris

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Mr. Loeb, scientist, hopes to produce life artificially. Dean Kimball of Cornell expects to produce "synthetic food." Other scientists propose to control the sex of unborn children and produce twins at will.

Another power has something to say about all these improvements. For instance, synthetic food, any amount of it, not containing mineral salts would produce death by starvation instead of nourishment. And synthetic food without vitamines would produce death by scurvy and rickets. What scientist will undertake to put the vitamines in synthetic food?

Barring another delay, Church, Chicago murderer of two men, will be hanged today, sitting in a chair. Starvation, self-inflicted, has made him too weak to stand. The doctors say he is "mentally dead," will know and feel nothing when "dignified human justice" breaks his neck as he sits in his chair.

"Mentally dead," applied to this criminal, could be applied to thousands of others. Criminal brains are at least half dead. Of those hanged, guillotined, electrocuted and otherwise put to death, three-quarters at least are mentally almost dead and feel little of the anguish that would be inflicted upon a normal mind by capital punishment.

This writer has seen a negro criminal walking to the gallows smoking a cigar. The cigar fell from his lips, his hands, bound, could not reach it. A spectator picked up the cigar, put it back in the criminal's mouth, and he walked on toward the gallows with a perfectly natural laugh. "Good nerve," said the spectators, but "mentally dead" would be a better description.

The latest bonus for soldiers plan would have the government issue certificates on which the soldiers might or might NOT be able to borrow money. You know what happened when the people at large were trying to borrow money on government bonds. They found themselves getting 4 per cent. on their bonds and paying 6 per cent. for the loans. Then they found the bonds dropped from par down to 84 or lower.

When the government issues certificates to the soldiers it will pay interest on the certificates. The soldiers will take their certificates to the bank and borrow, paying what interest the bank thinks wise to charge. Bankers will take the certificates to the Federal Reserve Bank and borrow Federal Reserve currency on them.

Why not give Federal Reserve currency direct to the soldiers and let them get one hundred cents on the dollar without any borrowing?

Is it "INFLATION" to pay your currency direct to the soldier, and wise conservatism when you hand it out through a bank, allowing the bank to make a profit and compelling taxpayers to pay interest?

Mohammedans are to have a mosque in Paris. From its top the muezzin, facing Mecca, will send out his mournful cry, inviting everybody to worship Allah and admit that Mohammed is his prophet. The cynical Frenchman at his little tin table below will sip his Mazagran and admit nothing. At Aix, Barbe, Louis Le Grande and all other colleges the teachers will remind boys that, but for Charles Martel, grandfather of Charlemagne, and his good fight at Poitiers, twelve hundred years ago, there would be today a minaret with its muezzin on every church in France. Victorious Mohammedans would have done to all churches what they did to St. Sophia at Constantinople, and Mohammed would be everybody's prophet.

Educators in Chicago criticize William Jennings Bryan as a "mediaevalist" because he is denouncing the Darwinian theory of evolution, seeking to prevent its teaching in the schools.

If Mr. Bryan chooses to attract attention by denouncing the theory that the world is round, or by denying the story of evolution written in the rocks and the clay, he has a right to do that. He will only interest and convince those that are hopelessly brainless. And what they think really doesn't matter.

On the other hand, he will interest in real science many that have given little thought to it. And in that he will do good work.

ATTACKED IN FIGHT WITH PET DOG

Haines' Son Set Upon While Treating Sick Setter; Parents Also Injured

Mayor Benjamin F. Haines of Medford, his wife and his fifteen-year-old son Louis were all undergoing the Pasteur treatment today as a precaution against hydrophobia, following an experience with a large Irish setter, which for years had been the pet of the Mayor's family.

While neither the Mayor nor members of his family will discuss the matter, friends today admitted considerable anxiety regarding the safety of the family.

The dog has been sick for several days, and Louis was attempting to administer medicine when the animal began to snarl and snap, and finally leaped upon the lad and scratched him severely.

Mrs. Haines, hearing the rumpus, ran into the room and the dog attacked her, scratching her, also. She ran out, shutting the door after her, and called the Mayor home.

When he entered the room where the animal was confined the dog sprang upon him and injured him. The Mayor, however, succeeded in tying up the dog and then sent for a doctor, who removed the animal.

Officially and publicly Mayor Haines today belittled the whole incident, but would not state what had become of the dog.

The existence of a number of cases of rabies in the vicinity of the Haines home on Central avenue, Medford, has caused considerable uneasiness among friends of the Mayor who learned of the affair.

Recently the State Board of Animal Industry ordered that all dogs in Medford be restrained for ninety days, in an effort to check the spread of the disease.

CONVICT WHO SLASHED DEPUTY WARDEN INSANE

George Fowler, a colored convict known as the "Oklahoma Kid," who has served six years of a twelve to fifteen-year term in Charlestown State prison for robbery, was today committed to the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Bridgewater. This followed his outbreak a week ago, when he ran amuck in his cell and gave a desperate battle to Deputy Warden William Hendry and Prison Officer Daniel Griffin. He had concealed a razor in his cell and he inflicted a severe slash on the deputy warden before he was subdued. He was sentenced for a series of lunchroom holdups in the South End.

CAMBRIDGE DOCTOR IS ARRESTED

Charged With Performing Operation That Caused Death of Young Widow

Dr. William J. Brown of Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, a former Back Bay physician, was arrested today charged with performing an illegal operation on Mrs. Margaret Savickers, a young widow, who died a few days ago in the Worcester City Hospital.

He pleaded not guilty in Cambridge police court today and was held in $10,000 bonds until March 10. Unable to obtain bail he was taken to jail.

According to the police, the woman's death was the result of illegal surgery. She lived with her two young children on a farm in Spencer. Dr. Brown was arrested in his Cambridge office by State Detectives Molt and McArthy.

The Savickers woman was found seriously ill in her Spencer home last Sunday. The physicians said she was the victim of an operation. They ordered her sent to the hospital. She died a few hours after her arrival. Mystery surrounded the case for a few days. Detectives then unearthed clews which, they said, led to the Cambridge doctor. It is charged that the affair occurred in Cambridge two weeks ago.

When arrested Dr. Brown strenuously denied all knowledge of the case. He is forty-six years old and single. He has lived in Cambridge but a short time.

The husband of Mrs. Savickers died about two months ago. She has since been assisted by Spencer and Worcester friends in maintaining her home. She disappeared for a day or two last week and search was started for her by these acquaintances. The search was ended when she reappeared at her home last Sunday.

A pathetic feature of her sudden death was the fact that her two little ones are left orphans. The children are being temporarily aided by friends of the dead woman.

Gen. Cole Among Speakers at Big Gathering in Faneuil Hall on Sunday

So interested is General Charles H. Cole, commander Massachusetts department American Legion, in the great mass meeting to be conducted in Faneuil Hall, next Sunday afternoon, as a protest against the delay of Congress in passing the adjusted compensation act that he has wired National Commander Hanford J. MacNider, at Washington, for latest developments.

Cole has requested MacNider to send the very latest information of the plans of the Ways and Means Committee of Congress that is framing the bill and the latest attitude of the legislative committee of the Legion.

The story which he receives from National Commander MacNider will be repeated by General Cole, who is to be one of the principal speakers at Sunday afternoon's meeting.

Many new reasons why Congress should take speedy and definite action in favor of the five-fold compensation bill will be enumerated by General Cole in his address. General Cole believes that adjusted compensation is a debt due to ex-service men by the Federal government and, believing that it is a debt, insists it should be paid without quibbling.

John L. MacDonald, commander, Massachusetts Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will also be one of the speakers at Sunday's meeting.

Commander MacDonald informed national headquarters of the plans for the Faneuil Hall meeting. His participation was approved and he was urged by national headquarters not only to do everything in his power to

ACTION ON CURLEY'S PROTEST

New England Representatives Meet at Capital March 20 to Help Port of Boston

Washington, March 3.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge announced today, after a conference with Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, that he would call a conference of representatives from the New England States, New York and New Jersey for March 20 in Washington to arrange a program for protesting against differential freight rates.

Mayor Curley, on behalf of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, had before Senator Lodge facts and figures on how the port of Boston is losing its maritime prestige because of unfair differential rates.

These rates are in favor of Baltimore and Philadelphia, which ports are flourishing at the expense of Boston, it was shown. New York is also in the fight with Boston, according to Mayor Curley.

The conference here on March 20 will bring together all members of Congress from New England, governors, mayors and representatives of business interests from the States affected by the unfair discrimination.

Mayor Curley left several photographs with Senator Lodge, showing many ships idle at the port of Boston for want of cargoes. The united protest against these rates will be laid before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

LODGE CALLS NEW ENGLAND RATE CONFERENCE TO AID BOSTON

CURLEY'S PROTEST HEEDED

Senator Lodge said: "It is the thing to do. I have always been for it. I am for it now. I shall do everything in my power to make the movement a success."

"President Harding," explained Mayor Curley, "has expressed the desire that America have a merchant marine large enough to carry American goods in American bottoms.

"At the port of Boston we have a score of ships laying idle for want of cargoes. This is due to the iniquitous differential rates.

"Let us have an equal opportunity with Philadelphia and Baltimore to compete for cargoes and Boston will assume its rightful prestige as a shipping centre. We have unexcelled shipping facilities and can compete on even conditions.

CITES THE UNEMPLOYED.

"Besides there are thousands of persons unemployed in New England. The differential rates stand in the way of many of these men being employed. There is a flat rate from Chicago to all Pacific ports. We want much an arrangement for the Atlantic ports.

"With all of New England's members in Congress united in the protest and with the cooperation of New York and other Atlantic States discriminated against, I have reason to believe that justice will be done by the Interstate Commerce Commission."

Mayor Curley also called on Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board to present Boston's proposition for the city of Boston or the State of Massachusetts taking over the South Boston army base, now largely idle.

The Mayor suggested that the army base be converted into a warehouse for California fruits that come to New England for consumption there and shipment overseas. He would also establish a spot cotton market at the army base.

"A large percentage of the cotton mills of the country are right in New England," said the Mayor, "and Boston is the natural place to have a cotton market. By establishing a cotton market in Boston much business would come to that city and the market would be near the point of consumption of cotton.

"If the Commonwealth does not care to take over the army base and let it for warehouse and cotton market purposes, I shall take such steps as are necessary for the city to do so.

BOSTON IS AROUSED.

"Boston is now awake to the fact that its port is slipping back from its old-time supremacy. The boom is now on. Remove the unfair discrimination in rates on freight into and out of New England and the New England ports will assume their previous activity.

"The differential rates not only cause bulk cargoes for Europe to go to Baltimore and Philadelphia, but also ships will not call at Boston with goods for import unless they have cargoes to take away. The unfair rates affect Boston both ways.

"In addition, Boston has the competition of Montreal and other Canadian ports. Millions upon millions of dollars are being spent in Canada to improve facilities there. The Boston fight is not only a local one. It is national preservation in this respect."

The Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce has filed a brief with the Interstate Commerce Commission pointing out the injustice of the indifferential rates.

Germany Melting Her Wedding Rings for Reparations

Berlin, March 3.—Germany is selling her wedding rings. War reparation and what is now called "super" high cost of living, has brought the people to this drastic point.

The wedding rings go with old plate, jewelry and trinkets. With hunger and the need of clothes as a driving force, and rapidly being drained of its gold, which is steadily dribbling into the Reichsbank in the form of bars, and from the Reichsbank it makes its reparation way to France. It will be but a little while before Germany is "gold-less."

BOY ENDS LIFE AFTER QUARREL ABOUT SCHOOL

Detroit Youth Brooded Over Father's Order That He Must Continue to Attend

By Associated Press.

Detroit, March. 3.—Resenting and brooding over his father's peremptory order that he must continue to attend school, Arthur Coleman, fourteen years old, shot and killed himself in his home here today.

A bitter quarrel is said to have resulted from the father's order. In a note the boy left he bade his father and stepmother farewell and added: "I want to see mother."

Young Coleman joined in family prayers before retiring last night and, according to his father, tossed about in bed until this morning. He then arose, obtained a rifle, lay back on the bed and shot himself.

He was a pupil in Cass Technical High School and was noted among his fellow pupils for his fistic prowess.

Coleman's farewell note was scribbled around the margin of the cover page of a religious publication. It read:

"We all have to go through the mill, you know, high or low, you're bound to go. I want to see my mother. I hate school; that is my reason. So Goodbye."

Apparently as a second thought he added beneath the signature:

"Here's hoping that I won't have to go to school any more."

SEN. STANLEY TO SPEAK HERE EVACUATION DAY

LINER BATTLES MIGHTY SEAS TO BOSTON

Winifredian Four Days Late; Two Passengers Injured During Stormy Trip

Four days overdue, the Leyland liner Winifredian crawled into port today after the stormiest passage ever experienced by Captain Trant, her veteran skipper. Buffeted by headgales and mountainous seas all the way, the liner twice experienced delays in mid-ocean as the result of mishaps. Two passengers, a man and woman, arrived in port in the ship's bay. They had been hurled from their feet while the ship pitched about.

Two days ago the liner plunged into the worst lap of the trip. A wave shook the whole vessel, hurling the dishes from the tables. The mighty shock also caused much other minor damage aboard.

The liner brought in twelve American passengers, including William W. Coe, of Somerville, father of the famous shot-putter, "Bill" Coe. He has returned from London to acquire American rights to a new fertilizer invention.

Aboard also was Mrs. George Lawrence, familiarly known by her stagename of Fay Davis, who comes to visit her sister at Columbia.

There was a touching reunion on the pier when Miss Elizabeth Maguire of Lancastershire, Eng., who crossed the seas to wed Henry Chaloner, of Madison street, Lawrence, met her husband-to-be. The girl was temporarily detained by immigration authorities. She will probably be released in time to wed in Lawrence tomorrow.

The Swedish steamship Ajax, expected here more than a week ago, has put into Fayal, Azores, badly battered by storms, according to advices received by her local agents today.

Police officers said a lead twenty-two-calibre revolver was found in her hand bag.

certs, thirty-four years old; Mary Laffin, eleven years old, and Edward C. Cozens, forty-five years old. Mrs. Roberts was so ill that she was removed to the Strong Hospital in East Boston. The others are being cared for at the home of friends on Tewksbury street.

Their rescuers were Patrolman Daniel Murphy of the Metropolitan Park police and Captain William Sawyer of the fire department.

SIX FAMILIES ROUTED.

The blaze is believed to have been caused by defective wiring in the cellar. The flames swiftly worked their way into the upper stories, driving a half-dozen families to the street.

Patrolman Murphy, whose beat includes the street on which the house is located, appeared just as it was recalled that the three invalids, who occupied rooms on the upper floors of the building, were unable to get to safety.

Joined by Captain Sawyer, the patrolman dashed into the building. Mrs. Roberts, too weak to walk, was first carried out and removed to the Rest House of the Metropolitan Park police a few yards over the street. Then the two officers returned and carried out the little girl and Cozens.

Mrs. Roberts was reported a short time later as resting comfortably at the hospital, despite the fact that the excitement and exposure had weakened her somewhat. It is expected that she will recover, however.

Police and firemen investigated the blaze. The damage to the building, which was owned by the Galliva estate, is estimated at $2,000.

West End Woman Burned in Lodging House Fire

One woman were severely burned about the face and hands and fifteen other lodgers were driven to the street today when fire swept through the two upper floors of a five-story lodging house at No. 66 Cambridge street, West End.

The injured and those forced to flee were:

Mrs. Julia Belger, sixty-eight years old. Found unconscious in her room on fifth floor. Carried down fire escape by Hoseman J. A. Morrison of Engine 5. Condition serious at Relief Hospital.

Mrs. Mary Kelley, carried down fire escapes to safety.

Mrs. Della Flynn and daughter Anna.

Mr. and Mrs. David Beaton.

Lydia Stockbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Stillman.

William Hamrahan.

The fire was caused by explosion of an oil stove in Mrs. Belger's room. The bed clothing caught fire. Part of Mrs. Belger's night clothing were in flames. She tried to beat them out as best she could.

Her screams were heard by Mrs. Mary Kelley on the same floor. She ran into the room and succeeded in beating out the flaming nightdress of the aged woman.

Sergeants Livingstone and Graham and Patrolman Decker of the Joy street station and firemen then carried the two women down a fire escape to the street.

The flames had gained considerable headway when firemen arrived and had eaten through to the floor below. Damage is estimated at $2,000.

ACCIDENT CLAIM SWINDLERS ARE SOUGHT HERE

$50,000 Collected by Band, Leaders of Whom Were Freed in Boston on Bail

New York, March 3.—Three men declared by the district attorney's office to have been the brains of a band that made a business of swindling accident insurance companies with fake damage claims, were indicted today by a general sessions grand jury for grand larceny.

Boston police were asked to apprehend the trio, said to have been released on bail there. Their names are withheld. Their known collections amount to more than $50,000 and it is believed the total is much higher.

The band, according to the district attorney's information, included a doctor, an insurance broker and several cripples who took turns at posing as "Exhibit A" in proving the accidents.

They moved from city to city in two automobiles, where insurance policies would be taken out in the names of the cripples and the inevitable "accident" would happen.

The band has operated in at least five States and has fleeced nearly every accident insurance company in business, it was asserted.

3 Men Indicted Here in Insurance Cases

The Boston police were today requested by the New York authorities to arrest Jacob Itzkowitz, alias Jacob Ritter; Max Elstein, alias Morris Wicker, and Benjamin Greenwald, alias Abraham Silberman, in connection with an alleged extensive accident insurance fraud there.

These three men have been out on bail since February 9 under indictments which were returned by the Suffolk County Grand Jury, charging them with similar offences here.

It was alleged one of the trio owned an automobile, and that, after he had taken an accident insurance policy with the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company, the other two used it as having been injured by him, and sued for damages. The sum of $100 was obtained from this company in that manner, police say.

This operation, it is said, 'is similar to the way which the men stand accused of in New York, with the exception that their machinations in the latter city were said to have been much more extensive.

All of the men gave addresses in Brooklyn, N. Y., when arrested here. With them were arrested Benjamin Itzkowitz and Arthur Shupack, charged with complicity in the offence. These latter two were not mentioned in the New York dispatches.

PINN TELLS OF 'HAPPINESS CAR' HE SHARED WITH MRS. M. A. READ

SAYS SHE GAVE HIM MONEY

Harry E. Pinn of West Medford once shared a "happiness car" and made a number of delightful little trips about suburban Boston in it with Mrs. Mary A. Read, formerly of Huntington avenue, Back Bay, according to his testimony today in the contest being made in the Superior Court to break Mrs. Read's will.

Mrs. Read left her $22,000 estate to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and her nieces and nephews are trying to prove that she was unduly influenced in drawing up the document by Joseph A. Aldrich, whose ghost has figured conspicuously in the trial.

For a time Pinn vied with Aldrich in sharing the friendship and ready money of Mrs. Read.

"In 1918 Mrs. Read made a joint deposit of $2,000 for her and myself," testified Pinn.

"Out of this we bought a well-known make of automobile. We called it our 'happiness car,' and we took frequent drives in it.

"One day we were driving through Medford when I noticed the tail lights were out. I started to stop the car and Mrs. Read jumped out before it came to a halt. She fell on the ground. I did not curse at her, but I did swear at the tail lights."

RETURNED THE CAR.

It had previously been testified that Pinn fluently cursed Mrs. Read when this incident happened.

"We also had a flivver," Pinn continued," and used this quite often. On the larger car I had my initials, Mrs. Read didn't object to this. I gave her back the car when we had a little falling out and I stopped seeing her.

"During the time I used to see her she never mentioned anything to me about Joe Aldrich's ghost. Once I published her about using the ouija board, but she didn't reply. She used to give me money and pay my fare down to the Cape when I went down there to see her. After we had our falling out I once called on her to borrow $500. She said she wouldn't loan it to me, but would give it to me as a present.

"Just before she died I went to see her in the hospital. We got talking about her sisters and she said she had heard two of them were planning to contest her will if she died. She said, 'They'll have a hot time proving me insane.'"

ALIENIST ON STAND.

Dr. William H. Prescott, an alienist, first witness for the contestants, preceded Pinn on the stand. He said a woman who acted as Mrs. Read is described to have during the last year's of her life was undoubtedly of unsound mind.

On cross-examination he admitted that a person who believed in spiritualism would not necessarily be a victim of delusions.

The testimony of Dr. Prescott ended the contestants' side and Frederick E. Whittaker of Woonsocket followed him on the stand as first witness for the defenders of the will.

Whittaker was a close friend of both Mr. and Mrs. Read and of Joseph Aldrich, whose ghost has figured so prominently in the contest.

He testified that as early as 1907 he had heard the Reads talking of eventually leaving their money to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and another kindred organization.

He declared he had frequently seen and talked with Mrs. Read during her last years, but had never noticed anything about her that would indicate she was suffering from mental weakness.

Bell Says Others Know More About Phone Than He Does

Washington, March 3.—Telephone companies, their officials say, have two special kinds of vanities to deal with among subscribers. One is possessed by those who desire special distinctive numbers and the other by those who wish their names to appear just so-and-so in the directory.

The National Geographic Society has found, however, that Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, possesses neither of these vanities. To prove it the Geographic Society points out that the father of the telephone appears thus in the Washington Telephone Directory:

"Bell, A. Graham (residence) 1331 Conn. Ave., Franklin 58."

The Geographic Society also is authority for the statement that Bell is the inventor asserted to a group of U. S. patent officials:

"I rather think you know more about the telephone today than I do."

He called attention to the more than 3,000 patents relating to telephones since he obtained the original patents in 1876.

GIRL ATTACKED BY MOVIE-MAD YOUTHS

Proctor, Vt., Waitress Found Bound and Gagged; Is Semi-Conscious and Babbling

Proctor, Vt., March 3.—Anna Steele, beautiful nineteen-year-old waitress, is in the hospital here in a babbling, semi-conscious condition, victim of what police believe was a movie-assault staged by two youths with silver seen melodramatic ideas.

The girl was found bound and gagged on the ground near a machine shop, her hands tied with rubber bands and a gag in her mouth. In her pocket was this note:

"She boards at Middlebury. Knows all about it. Bill Stafford and Chuck Novak now try to find us if you can. You will have a d—— fine time at it. It was signed "The Two of Us."

Startup is sheriff of Rutland County and Norwich State's Attorney.

At the hospital the girl has been unable to throw light upon her assailants. All she mumbles is: "I got lots of funny notes."

She was engaged as a waitress at the Proctor Inn recently. Nothing is known of her people.

JEALOUS MAN KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Woman Friend Wounded; Her Husband Says He Feared Tragedy

"I expected something like this," declared Alfred Atwood when told today that William P. Garvey had shot and seriously wounded Mrs. Genevieve G. Atwood, twenty-four years old, and then killed his wife, Mrs. Ethel Garvey, and himself in a fit of jealous rage over the friendship between the two women.

"That intimacy between my wife and Mrs. Garvey has been the bane of my life and that of Garvey," said Atwood, a fireman in a Waltham factory.

"It broke up my home and it broke up the home of the Garveys. Mrs. Garvey was years older than my wife, but she exercised a strange influence over her and despite all that I could do and despite the protests of Garvey, and the fact that both of them could have seen that sooner or later the affair would end in tragedy, they insisted on keeping up their friendship."

AT MOVIES WITH MEN

The triple shooting took place at the home of Garvey, No. 23 Foster street, West Newton, after the two women had returned from an evening spent with two young men at a Waltham moving picture theatre.

Mrs. Atwood received a bullet through the upper part of the right arm. She was taken to the Newton Hospital where it was said today she was not in danger.

"You tell the authorities I am more than willing to stand behind her and see that she has all she needs," said her husband. "I can't leave my job until later, but as soon as I can I'll go to see her."

"I have been heartbroken over the whole affair," he declared. "My wife seemed to be made utterly irresponsible by her friendship for Mrs. Garvey.

"She refused to make a home for me and our two babies—Doris and Gladys, seven and three years old. She would not even have Gladys with her as she and Garvey knew she insisted upon boarding, but put the little girl out to board with strangers, while I took care of Doris.

"I have been following her at night and watching over her as much as possible.

"I hope that now Mrs. Garvey is gone, Mrs. Atwood will come back to me and that we may have some home life."

Mrs. Atwood is suing her husband for divorce, charging him with cruel and abusive treatment. The suit is now pending in the Cambridge Superior Court.

SON SAW TRAGEDY.

Raymond Garvey, the dead couple's eighteen-year-old son, was a witness of the tragedy. According to his story told to the police, his father and mother were quarrelling in their bedroom and Mrs. Atwood went into the room to quiet them.

Mrs. Garvey was seated on the bed. His father, he said, was standing. Just as they passed the threshold of the room his father whipped out a revolver and fired at the wife. The bullet entered her breast and she fell to the floor.

Quickly the enraged man whipped around and fired at Mrs. Atwood, who, feeling the sting of the bullet in her arm, screamed and ran downstairs. Before he could intervene his mother crowded across the narrow hallway to her feet began to run toward the kitchen.

Raymond tried to stop his father, who pushed him away and revolver in hand, turned and fired at her again as she entered the kitchen.

Harry A. Shepard, twenty-nine years old, Garvey's partner, awakened by the shots ran from his room and was entering the kitchen as the maddened man fired the second shot into his wife's body. Shepard attempted to grapple with Garvey, but Garvey was too quick for him and turning the weapon fired into his own body, falling across his wife's unconscious form.

They died while being taken to the Newton Hospital by police ambulance. Garvey was forty-nine years old, his wife six years younger. They moved recently to West Newton from Waltham.

Mrs. Atwood, bleeding from the wound in her arm, was also taken to Newton Hospital.

MOSQUITO SQUAD TO REPORT PEST'S TASTES

Atlantic City, N. J., March 3.—Mosquitoes inhabiting the State of New Jersey have been slandered. They have been held up to obloquy as carnivorous monsters. Dr. Thomas H. Headley, state entomologist, says the "swamp angel" is an epicure. He picks and chooses, and humans and animals not possessing the proper flavor are avoided. He wants fat and lean volunteers to go into swamps and report which the mosquitoes like best.

FRAZEES BOTH ABSENT AS SUIT IS CALLED

New York Court Attaches See Successful Attempt for Private Settlement

New York, March 3.—When the divorce suit brought against Henry H. Frazee, millionaire owner of the Boston Red Sox and theatrical producer, by Mrs. Elsie Frazee, came up for hearing in court here today neither Mr. nor Mrs. Frazee were represented.

This was taken by court attaches to indicate efforts were being made to settle the case out of court, and that they would probably be successful.

Mrs. Frazee filed suit against the baseball magnate in August last, charging him with having been unfaithful to her and naming Elizabeth Nelson, an actress, as corespondent in the suit.

Frazee, who is forty-two years old, is one of the most sensational figures in modern sports. He purchased the Boston baseball team in 1916 for a cost of $675,000.

Frazee jumped into the limelight when he financed the "Jim Jeffries tour," in which he paid the pugilist $42,000 and cleared up $25,000 for himself.

He began his career as a bellboy in Peoria, Ill., hotel, became a bill poster and finally a theatrical producer. He is said to have made more than a million dollars by his theatrical productions alone.

The Frazees were married in 1902 in Knox County, Ill., and have one son, Harry H. Frazee, Jr., now nineteen years old.

Mrs. Frazee asked the court to grant her absolute divorce, with alimony, support for herself and her son, of whom she asked the custody.

committee on supply of that church.

Dr. Massee, if he accepts the call, will succeed the Rev. Cortland Myers, who filled the pulpit at the Temple for ten years, resigning last June on account of failing health.

The forthcoming issuing of a call to Dr. Massee was announced today by members of the committee on supply. It is not definitely known whether he will accept the offer but it is believed he will give it serious consideration.

The Tremont Temple has been without a regular pastor since Rev. Dr. Myers' resignation. Since then officials of the church have filled the most prominent divines in their denomination speak at Sunday meetings, and Dr. Massee has appeared in the local pulpit a number of times.

Members of the congregation, as well as officials of the church, are known to have been very enthusiastic over Dr. Massee's ability as a minister. Decision to offer him the Temple pulpit came, however, only after a score or more of ministers had been heard.

The Baptist Temple of Brooklyn, where Dr. Massee is now preaching, is on of the largest churches in Greater New York, and while there he has attained fame as one of the most eloquent preachers in the East.

SON-IN-LAW OF REDMOND SHOT IN DUBLIN

Max Green, Chairman of Irish Prison Board, Slain in Attack in Capital

Belfast, March 3 (By the Associated Press).—Max S. Green, chairman of the Irish Prison Board, was shot and killed in Dublin today, a Dublin message announces. He was a son-in-law of the late John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader.

The shooting of Mr. Green occurred after a robbery. An official of the ministry of pensions, carrying a considerable sum of money, was held up by armed men who took from him a bag containing £300 and ran away with it. The police gave chase and captured the robber who had the money in his possession.

Another of the fleeing men fired on his pursuers and a man named Green was struck by a bullet and killed. Another man was wounded at the same time.

Commons Passage of Free State Act Certain

London, March 3 (By International News Service).—Lord Hugh Cecil's amendment to the Irish Free State Act, referring to Ulster boundary alterations, was defeated in the House of Commons this afternoon. The vote was 199 to 66. Defeat of the amendment carried with it closure of debate and virtually assures passage of the Irish Free State Act upon third and final reading.

The Unionist "Die-hards" in Commons have carried on a consistent fight to amend the Irish Free State Act, but have been defeated in every encounter by the adherents of Premier Lloyd George.

LAWYERS FIGHT TO SAVE CHURCH FROM HANGING

Sheriff Prepared to Execute Slayer Who Is "Mentally Dead," Strapped in Chair

By Associated Press.

Chicago, March 3.—Harvey W. Church, twenty-one years old, double murderer, sentenced to be hanged today, continued to lie in what many medical men have termed a state of self-induced hypnotic catalepsy, as his attorneys planned to avail themselves of three almost hopeless efforts to obtain a stay, and the sheriff announced his plan to carry out the execution with the helpless Church strapped in a chair.

Governor Small refused to interfere with the execution yesterday, but Church's attorneys still maintained hope for an eleventh-hour reprieve.

Humanitarian grounds would form the basis for a writ of habeas corpus Bennison F. Bartel, one of Church's attorneys, said he would seek in Criminal Court today.

DOCTORS KEEP WATCH.

The third and last hope was for the other attorney, Frank J. Tyrrell, to obtain a stay through a plea that the execution was not carried out within the twenty-five-day limit after sentence.

Late last night Church moved slightly for the first time in many days. The movement, turning slowly from his right to his left side followed a visit of his sister in which she pleaded with her brother to open his eyes, recognize her and make a dying statement for his aged parents.

Doctors watched Church intently as his sister knelt beside him, embraced and kissed him, for some indication he was unconscious.

"MENTALLY DEAD."

Church's slow, even breathing and steady pulse beat was unchanged, however, and the doctors reiterated expressions of opinion that the transformation during his five weeks' hunger strike had resulted in complete loss of mental and physical control and that his mind probably has ceased to function.

Church's crime was the murder of Bernard J. Daugherty and Carl Assmus, automobile salesmen, from whom he had indicated he intended to purchase a high-priced motor car. The men were killed in the Church home, taken singly to the basement, handcuffed and beaten to death with a baseball bat and hand axe.

Daugherty's body was thrown into the Plaines River and Assmus, while yet alive, was buried in the Church garage, his neck being broken, according to Church's confession, when he stamped on the bound body to force his head in a shallow hole hurriedly scooped out.

$8,000 IN SILKS CARTED AWAY BY THIEVES

Private Detectives on Trail of Band That Looted Chauncy Street Establishment

Shattering with hammers the locks of two iron shutters that impeded their entrance into the tailoring establishment of Samuel Jacobs & Co., second-story workers forced their way into the building at No. 26 Chauncy street a week ago today and stole silks worth between $6,000 and $8,000.

Captain Matthew J. Dalley of the Lagrange street police station immediately after the job applied the clamps of secrecy in an attempt to hide the story from newspaper reporters.

This is the second visit to this district of silk burglars within the past year. Pinkerton operatives working in the interest of an insurance company are satisfied the robbers were a special band of plunderers sent on from New York.

LOOT CARTED OFF.

Owing to the present demand for fineries of the variety stolen, detectives feel certain the loot was sent to New York, where it might be more easily disposed of.

That the 100 bolts of silk and satin, together with a quantity of costly velvet, was carried off in some automobile or wagon is certain. But the clean getaway of the burglars puzzled neighborhood merchants. None could understand how policemen of the Lagrange street police station missed the lock-smashing and were not observant of truckmen in the vicinity after hours.

Shortly after 6 o'clock Thursday night Samuel Jacobs and his girl bookkeeper left the store. Returning at 8 a. m. Friday they were astonished to find a light burning midway in the salesroom.

SHUTTER LOCKS FORCED.

Grooves once filled with expensive silks were empty, while other goods of cheaper quality were strewn carelessly about the display cases. A temporary wood panel over a rear window had been removed.

Captain Dailey was notified, likewise the company that had insured the stolen goods. Investigating, they decided entrance had been gained through forcing shutter locks, the doors of which are level with a rear fire escape. Erecting a ladder to the second floor, the nearest point to Jacob's shop, the robbers had begun operations.

Seven days of investigation by special officers of Station 16 had led nowhere, with the result that Headquarters Inspectors Donovan and Kilday have taken over the assignment.

HOUSE ACCEPTS ACHIN'S BILL ON TAX EXEMPTION

After much heated oratory in the House on the need of the State for more children and the necessity of making the rearing of children less expensive, the House today accepted the bill of Representative Achin of Lowell for more deductions from taxable incomes allowed for children instead of the adverse report which the taxation committee had given the measure. Representative Achin said it is right to exempt two children, as the State of Georgia does. There should be exemption for every child. Parents, he said, ought not to be penalized for bringing children into the world, but encouraged.

FAMOUS TITLES TEST OPEN TO EVERY READER

You can take part in the Boston American's $5,000 Famous Titles Test, the third picture of which is printed today, without enrolment. The Test is open to every reader.

This statement is repeated prominently because of the number of those who have written to the Title Test Editor that they "wish to be enrolled" as participants.

If you desire to take part in the Test, begin today by writing a title for Test Drawing No. 3. You may be able to obtain copies of the first two drawings without much difficulty. If not, do not worry. Arrangements are in the making by which it will be possible to supply you with what you require.

JUST WHAT THE GAME IS.

The Test Editor will not discuss the different pictures as they come along any more than is absolutely necessary. You will have the pictures before you and with each you will see a List of Titles containing (among others) the Correct Title.

The "game" is to find and write the Correct Title. One title in each list will fit the picture BETTER than any other title in the list. That title will be the Correct Title. The Correct Title is the title the picture was drawn to illustrate. The title was chosen first. The drawing was made to illustrate that title.

Write more Correct Titles than are sent in by any other contestant and the Boston American cheerfully will pay you $1,000 in cash. If yours is the second largest number of Correct Titles, your reward will be $750. The awards will number 219 and have a total value of $5,000, as follows:

First Award	$1,000
Second Award	750
Third Award	500
Fourth Award	400
Fifth Award	300
Sixth Award	200
Seventh Award	150
Eighth Award	100
Ninth Award	50
100 Awards of $10 each	1,000
110 Awards of $5 each	550
Total	$5,000

TESTS ARE GOOD FUN.

It is the aim of the Test Artist and the Test Editor to make the Famous Titles Test so interesting that even those who do NOT win an award will feel well repaid. The Title Tests are good fun. They are wholesome entertainment. They may be instructive.

All the members of the family may take part and, as you will see by the Rules, each may send in a separate set of answers. The rule is that only one award will be paid to one family.

This is because the awards are so few in number—even though there are 219 of them—in comparison with the great multitude of contestants.

Please do not assume, new contestants, that the Test Artist means that you, or anyone else, shall name HIS sixty titles. That is not his design. He hopes and believes that, at least occasionally, you will prefer some other title to the Correct Title. And very likely you will.

More than half the sixty problems which will be placed before you, you probably will consider easy, and rightly so. Not even this Test Artist, with all his undoubted talent, can produce sixty "stickers." Now and then, however, he will do his best to mislead you. That is his part of the job. Yours is to catch him.

FOR SIXTY WEEK-DAYS.

The Famous Titles Test will continue for a total of sixty days. Sixty week-days. There will be no Test Drawings on Sunday. The Boston American is not printed on Sundays.

A recent Membership Competition, participated in by many of our friends who took part in the $5,000 Book Test, has resulted in bringing thousands of new contestants to the Famous Titles Test and, in a great many neighborhoods, undoubtedly, has increased the demand for the Boston American.

You may have felt the effect of this increase. To be certain of YOUR Boston American every day the best thing to do is place a standing order for the paper with your regular newsdealer. Let him know of your interest in the Famous Titles Test. Tell him you MUST have the paper every day while the Test continues. If you then have any difficulty in getting the Boston American, please drop a line to the Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston (8), Mass.

The new contestant cannot be reminded too often or too forcefully that the important features of the Title Test are two in number. First, the Test Drawing; second, the List of Titles. One is of as much importance as the other.

STUDY WITH CARE.

There are cases on record here wherein the contestant has argued in favor of a title that was not in the List of Titles at all!

The Correct Title can always be found in the List of Titles printed with the picture. It MUST be some title in the List of Titles printed on the same day as the drawing. It cannot be some title, however good, NOT in the List of Titles.

Often the Correct Title will be apparent at first glance. When this happens you will know that you need look no further. On another day your feeling of "certainty" will be weak in the knees. This will be the time to study the List of Titles with care and understand exactly what it contains.

There wouldn't be any "contest," and certainly no one could pay all the awards, if the artist set out to make each and every drawing as plain as the architect's plan of a house is meant to be to the builder. Mr. Artist has drawn these pictures "for contest purposes," and while he wishes each of you all the luck in the world he earnestly hopes that not more than one of you will be heard from at the close of the Test with 60 Correct Titles.

It will be several days before the clerks at Test Headquarters are able to dig themselves out of the Enrolment Blanks sent in by those who were "out for the money" in the recent Membership Competition. The result of that competition exceeded the fondest hopes of everybody. The Book Testers who took part in it will be glad to know that a letter is going out to every person whose name appears on those blanks and that each also will receive the first four Test Drawings and the Lists of Titles that belong to them.

NO BACK PICTURES.

All contestants are advised that there will be NO printing of Famous Titles Test "back" pictures. One Test Drawing will be printed daily, and only one. If you do not get the Boston American every day, remember that you are free to make copies of the drawings and that these copies will be quite as acceptable at the close of the Test, and count for just as much as drawings clipped from the paper. Copies may be made with pencil or with pen and ink. They MUST be hand-made. They can be made easily by using tracing paper.

The Test Editor is devoting all his "spare" time to calls upon the Nine Leaders in the recent $5,000 Book Test. He hopes to have story, pictures, interviews and statistics ready some day next week.

Please remember, everybody, that Famous Titles Test drawings and titles must not be sent in from day to day. Hold them! Keep them neat and clean until the close of the Test and then send them in "all together at one time."

Tomorrow, Famous Titles Test Drawing No. 4.

Rules of the Titles Test

The Boston American Famous Titles Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by this newspaper to its readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published one each day for sixty days consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

All employes of the Boston American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The test will consist of sixty pictures, each representing a famous title, to be printed, one each day, in the Boston American, the first picture on Wednesday, March 1, 1922.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every title must be written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American; or on a page of some book form of itself, accompanied by the picture furnished by the Boston American, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, that is, do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solutions, giving weight to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American title headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Famous Title Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 230," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed matter, if mailed it is absolutely necessary that the packages be fully prepaid at postal rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. Lists of Famous Titles will be printed in the Boston American. The list appearing will contain, among others, the correct title.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Famous Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible through the columns of the Boston American. If participants desire personal replies they should enclose stamped and self-addressed envelopes.

The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in or addition to these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Test Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

EXCURSIONS TO IRELAND UNDER WAY APRIL 1

Hudson to Open Sailings Under American Flag From New York

New York, March 3.—The first of a series of excursions to Ireland on vessels of the United States Lines will be inaugurated on April 1 with the sailing of the steamship Hudson.

The vessel is rapidly being booked full with persons of Irish ancestry, who are desirous of visiting the land of their forefathers.

John J. Daly will act as special conductor of the excursion. He is well known because of his athletic attainments. During the last fourteen years Mr. Daly has been conspicuous in track athletics and is known far and wide as the "Galway runner." He was a member of the United States Olympic tour to the games in Greece several years ago, and has been a participant in other international games held abroad. He is the leader of the five and ten-mile championships, the steeplechase championship, and the Canadian two and three-mile championships.

Daly is a member of the Irish-American Athletic Club, and runs under their colors. He is also president of the Galway Men's Association.

The demand for passage to Ireland on the vessels of the United States Lines is growing heavier each day, and the line is finding it necessary to place other ships into the service between New York and Cobh (Queenstown).

TWO HARVARD HALLS ARE CALLED FIRETRAPS

Two of the halls in the Harvard yard are fire traps, according to the Harvard Crimson. They are Sever and Harvard. An editorial in the Crimson declares that Sever Hall is "made of the best fuels, thoroughly dried and seasoned wood." Its "cleverly concealed" fire escapes are called "pathetic" and "hopeless." Of Harvard Hall the editorial says, "even the artistically conceived Sever fire escape is lacking." The article says that its comment on the "two admirable firetraps" is prompted by the fire in Cambridge Wednesday morning.

BROOKSIDE
What That Name Means to You on Canned Foods

These are tiny wrinkled sweet peas of the very finest quality. Grown and canned in Wisconsin.

From the best of Maine's famous crops, Brookside fancy sweet corn is selected. Canned where grown.

Perfect peaches, yellow cling, tree ripened by the golden sun of California. Canned where grown.

Up in York State these finest tomatoes are picked—on the very day that they show the full rosy, red blush of maturity. And sealed in cans, then and there, to retain their virgin freshness until you welcome them upon your table. A can full of tomatoes, not liquids.

As with tomatoes, so also the many other foods which the name "Brookside" identifies as of first quality always—

For behind that name stands the reputation of 300 Brookside Stores, and a vast business built by giving to New Englanders their honest money's worth of butter, eggs, biscuits, tea, coffee, groceries, milk and cream.

HELD IN $10,000 FOR SUBWAY STABBING

Herman Johnson, Arrested in Braintree, Identified by Knife Victim

Herman Johnson, forty-eight years old, of Denby road, West Roxbury, was arraigned before Judge Bennett in the Municipal Court and held in $10,000 bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of assault with intent to murder Peter Wagner of No. 73 Huntington avenue, West Roxbury, on the platform of the Washington station of the Cambridge tunnel.

Johnson denied the charge, but was identified by Wagner, who is at the Haymarket Relief Station, recovering from a stab wound in the leg, which he says was inflicted by Johnson.

The quarrel between the two men, which was witnessed by hundreds of men and women, is said by the police to have arisen over a woman.

Johnson escaped by leaping into a subway train. He was later arrested in Braintree by Boston officers.

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM FULL OF GLOOM

Couple Meet and Wed, and Part to Meet Again and Wed Once More

Life is just one reconciliation after another for the Statirs.

Just now they are parted.

But if past performances mean anything their parting will not be permanent.

They are George and Hazel. In 1918 they were married. One year later he sued for divorce. Before the action reached court they were reconciled. In 1921 Mrs. Statir sued for divorce. She was given a decree by Judge Flynn in Superior Court. Before the six months expired to make it permanent Kid Cupid patched things up and they became reconciled once more. The decree was set aside.

Two weeks ago Statir sued again for divorce. His wife countered with a cross suit. Today Judge Flynn awarded her $30 counsel fees and $8 per week pending the hearing of the suits.

Mrs. Statir is living with her mother at No. 678 Tremont street, South End.

This time, she says it is permanent, unless they decide to try it again.

"PLAYFELLOW'S" BUYER IS AWARDED $100,000

New York, March 3.—Harry A. Sinclair, millionaire oil man, was awarded $100,000 by a jury, holding that the race horse Playfellow, brother of Man o' War, was unsound when purchased from James F. Johnson; $100,000 was the purchase price.

During the trial, Mr. Sinclair claimed that "Playfellow" was represented to him as being sound and that he found afterwards that the thoroughbred was afflicted with "windsucking."

Goes Back to Stage and Is Charged in Suit With Desertion

ROBERTA ARNOLD.
(Photo by White.)

GOVERNOR OF OKLAHOMA IN FIST FIGHT

Okmulgee, Okla., March 3.—Governor J. B. A. Robertson was attacked by James G. Lyons, an oil man, as the Governor emerged from the private office of County Attorney James Hepburn today.

When Governor Robertson was introduced to Lyons, bystanders said, the Governor extended his hand and Lyons struck him in the face.

"I am a man," Governor Robertson said, "and struck back at Mr. Lyons."

They exchanged probably half a dozen blows before they were separated.

WOULD DIVORCE WIFE WHO GOES ON THE STAGE

No Other Choice for Husband, Says Rawlinson, Busy With Another Film

Los Angeles, March 3.--If you remember "Upstairs and Down," you recall it was a comedy of domestic life. Roberta Arnold was its star. In domestic life as staged she was a decided hit. In domestic life off the boards it must be different, for now Roberta's film star husband, Herbert Rawyinson, has filed suit for divorce, charging desertion. She has gone back to the stage.

Rawlinson, now in Denver with his film, "The Scrapper," was quoted as saying that the little girl who since 1911 had been his devoted wife was now no more for him.

"If women like the stage better than their husbands, then there is no choice for the husband but to free them," he said.

Divorce action became known today. It came as a surprise to Hollywood's film folk, who had always admired the devotion of "Herbert and Roberta."

COAL OPERATORS NOT IN FAVOR OF CONFERENCE

Washington, March 3.—The government today is confronted with the problem of forcing the bituminous coal operators to join the miners in a conference to avert the threatened strike on April 1. It was learned today that the operators look with disfavor upon President Harding's suggestion that the two groups meet in conference. Such a meeting is specifically provided for, in the pact signed by the operators and miners in 1920 and is in effect that "an interstate joint conference be held prior to April 1, 1922."

13 DRYDOCKS FOR SALE BY SHIPPING BOARD

Washington, March 3.—Thirteen of the Shipping Board's drydocks located on the Atlantic seaboard and the Gulf have been turned over to Vice-President Farley to be sold. The docks cost about $900,000 each and President Powell of the Emergency Fleet Corporation said they should bring $300,000 each. They are located at Baltimore, Norfolk, Staten Island, Pensacola, Fla., New York, Perth Amboy, N. J., Galveston, Texas, Mobile, Ala., and Weehawken, N. J.

WIDOW OF EXPLORER SCOTT IS BRIDE AGAIN

London, March 3.—Lady Scott, widow of Captain Robert F. Scott, the Antarctic explorer who perished during a blizzard while returning from the South Pole in 1913, was married today to Lieutenant-Commander E. Hilton Young, financial secretary of the treasury. The ceremony was performed in the crypt of the chapel of the House of Commons by the Bishop of St. Albans.

FEDERAL AGENT TO AID O'BRIEN IN DRUG DRIVE

Assigned to District Attorney's Office After Prosecutor Confers With Dr. Ruth

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien announced after a conference with Dr. Erwin C. Ruth, the United States agent for the internal revenue department of the Boston district, that a Federal inspector is to be assigned to the district attorney's office to aid in the drug crusade, which O'Brien is about to undertake.

O'Brien says that "by a co-ordination among the Federal and police officials and my office, we expect to achieve not only noteworthy results, but to actually drive the dope pedlars out of Boston. Whether they go to jail or to other climates is optional with them. Dr. Ruth says the evil can be stamped out here in three months."

O'Brien has no doubt that the larger portion of drugs, now bought on the streets, come from Japan and reach the Eastern States through the western coast of Canada.

Dr. Ruth, according to the district attorney, has previously worked with the authorities of Kansas City and St. Louis, in both of which cities the drug evil was reduced to a minimum in a few months. It is because of this that O'Brien expects quick results in Boston.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia all start with a cold. At the first sign of fever, the moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole is a counter-irritant that goes right after congestion (which is what a cold really is and restores normal circulation.

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the unpleasant sting and blister.

During the big "Flu" epidemic several years ago Musterole was used in our training camps. The Y. M. C. A. War Board sent thousands of jars to our boys in France. Doctors have been recommending it to their patients for years.

Just rub it on the congested parts with your finger tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

If there are colds in your house get Musterole on the job at once. It may prevent serious illness. It is a good plan to have Musterole always on the bathroom shelf for the emergency.

Sold by all druggists, 35c and 65c, in jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.00.

FUGITIVE GIRL IN BOSTON LAST WEEK

Woman Sought in $15,000 Shortage Wrote Letter From Here Admitting Losing Money

Elizabeth Kenney, missing Northfield bookkeeper, for whom police of three States are searching for the alleged larceny of $15,000 of the town's funds, was in Boston on February 23, police learned today.

At a Boston downtown hotel she wrote a letter to Warren J. Wright, seventy-year-old town treasurer, whose assistant and housekeeper she was, admitting, it is said by Northfield authorities, that she had taken $10,000 from the treasury and lost it.

On the previous day, Washington's Birthday, she visited her brother, William Kenney, at No. 171 Elm street, Gardner. She stayed but a few hours.

Police believe she came direct to Boston, then fled to New York.

Miss Kenney, who is thirty years old, left Northfield the day after she was quizzed by auditors who had examined the town treasurer's books. Wright immediately filed a suit of $25,000 against her in an action of tort.

Miss Kenney's disappearance and the announcement that the aged town treasurer was short $15,000 has thrown Northfield into a feverish state of excitement.

The little town on the lip of the New Hampshire State line buzzes today with gossip. Old-timers stand about the general store and whisper. And their whisperings are punctuated with mention of names, $15,000 and the speed of the world today.

Miss Kenney kept house for Wright for ten years. She was also his office assistant.

Although he is directly responsible for the loss, no charge has been lodged against him. Wright is seventy years old.

FLED FROM GARDNER.

State Detective Joseph V. Daley of Northampton and Sheriff Arthur M. Haskins of Greenfield conferred here with Wright and the other town officials. The town officials assert that they had the utmost confidence in the town treasurer and that this was shared by the entire community.

At a town meeting which is to be held Monday night the matter will be laid before the voters. State Auditors E. H. Fenton and H. B. Dine have been working on the treasurer's books.

Miss Kenney was last seen in Northfield, February 23. She said that she was going to Gardner to visit a sick relative. Her brother lives there. The police found that she had left Gardner and disappeared.

The police state that several years ago the house in which were kept the town records was struck by lightning and a fire followed, destroying all the treasurer's records. At that time Miss Keney was in Wright's employ.

WAS BOSTON NURSE.

The shortage was first noticed at the town meeting, which was held on February 6. The treasurer's books were in such shape that the State auditors were called. They had not proceeded far with their work when they called Wright and Miss Kenney for an explanation. Miss Kenney admitted that there might be a shortage, but requested them not to say anything to Wright about it.

This interview occurred on February 21, and two days later she left for Gardner. Previous to leaving she called one of the auditors on the telephone, and again requested him not to tell Wright of the matter.

Previous to coming here Miss Kenney lived in Boston, and was a nurse at the Forest Hills Hospital.

U. S. HOLDS RECORD SUGAR CONSUMPTION

Washington, March 3.—As a sugar-eating nation America still holds the record, Commerce Department figures showed today. The United States used 10,548,000,000 pounds last year. NEW EFFORT TO REOPEN ALL R. I. MILLS

Strikers' Parade at Pontiac Is Dispersed by Troop of State Cavalry

Providence, March 3.—Announcement that a new effort would be made to reopen all mills in the Pawtuxet and Blackstone valleys, the importation of more strike-breakers in the Hope Mill and the dispersal of a strikers' parade in Pontiac were developments today in the big textile strike here.

The decision to reopen the fills Monday was reached at a meeting of owners held this noon. The owners believe that, with proper protection, they will be able to muster enough help to start up the plants.

The strikers in Pontiac attempted to stage a demonstration today and started a march toward one of the mills. They were halted by a troop of State cavalrymen and ordered to disperse. They did so without disorder.

Hope Mills Are Run Guarded by Militia

By Associated Press.

Providence, March 3.—The textile mills of the Hope Company at Hope, which reopened yesterday under military and police guard, were run today in some departments, while cavalrymen and deputy sheriffs patroled the entrances and approaches to the plant. At 6:30 this morning troops cleared the roadway in front of the mills where strike pickets attacked an operative yesterday.

While civilian police under Deputy Sheriff Colvin of Providence County, aided by a detachment of cavalry and a machine gun unit, held the pickets at bay, overseers from the mills canvassed the houses in the village in quest of workers willing to return to their looms. A number of operatives were collected in this way and swelled the number who braved the pickets yesterday.

A statement issued by the assistant superintendent of the Hope mills, James P. Craig, claimed that the plant was running today at 30 per cent. capacity.

The pickets, who were strikers recruited from all the mill villages of the Pawtuxet Valley, remained near the plant until 7:45 and then marched away. They stopped in front of the Interlaken Print Works at Arkwright, a few miles down the valley, another plant closed by the strike, and exchanged words with Superintendent R. N. Gee. The superintendent telephoned to the coast artillery headquarters at Natick and a detachment of troops was dispatched to disperse the crowd.

Hundreds of Pawtuxet Valley strikers today joined strikers from the Blackstone Valley in a demonstration at the State House here in favor of labor bills at present before the Legislature.

These measures are for a 48-hour week, abolition of night work for women and minors, and elimination of the property qualification for voters. Several thousand textile workers assembled here to parade to the State House.

"DANDERINE"

Grows Thick, Heavy Hair

35-cent Bottle Ends all Dandruff Stops Hair Coming Out

Ten minutes after using Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow long, strong and luxuriant. One application of Danderine makes thin, lifeless, colorless hair look youthfully bright, lustrous, and just twice as abundant.—Advertisement.

WEEKS WARNS AGAINST BIG ARMY CUT

Third of Establishments Must Go If Budget Is Slashed, Says War Secretary

Miami, Fla., March 3.—Reduction of from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 from the War Department's budget for the new fiscal year, reported to be the plan of the House Appropriations Sub-Committee, will mean a decrease of at least one-third in the number of army forts, posts, firing fields, and training camps of the country, Secretary Weeks said today.

"It would be impossible with a force of only 100,000 men, to properly man these forts, camps and fields, even with a sufficient number of men "to drill a squad," Mr. Weeks declared.

The Secretary said there were 150 forts, posts, firing fields and camps in the country proper and forty outside of the country. Firing fields which are nearer to large cities and forts will be retained, he said.

"The number of Congress who [illegible] beyond what we think it ought to be, should not complain if the department finds it necessary to abandon a fort or post or field or camp which happens to be in his district," said Mr. Weeks.

He declared he would not appear again before the Appropriations Sub-Committee unless specifically requested so to do.

"It is not my army. It belongs to the people, and if they want to make the cut they have the right to do so," he said.

HAGEN-BURGER DENIES WIFE'S CHARGES

Dr. Gottfried Hagen-Burger, Boylston street physician, defendant in the divorce suit brought by Mrs. Gertrude S. Hagen-Burger of Brookline, entered a sweeping denial today in Superior Court to charges of cruelty to members of his family.

He testified that he never beat his eleven-year-old son Chandler with a golf club. "I never owned golf clubs," he said. "I don't play golf."

He admitted having chastened the boy on numerous occasions for disobedience, but never, he said, to the extreme of cruelty.

He also denied shutting his fourteen-year-old daughter Barbara in a closet for three-hour periods.

Witnesses, including the boy and girl, had testified to cruel treatment on the part of their father.

Mrs. Hagen-Burger is suing on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment.

The physician has countered with a cross-libel and similar charge.

MEDBURY

Says Most Men Can't Bear to See Their Wives Do a Big Washing at Night--That's Why They Go to Their Club

There is only one way to solve the servant problem. Give week-end parties and let your guests do the work.

Let them bring their own dishes and then take them home and wash them.

Invite three or four society women, so they can come sweeping into the parlor.

After they do that, then let them go into the kitchen and sweep.

Invite them while they're hungry and you'll have no trouble getting your pantry cleaned.

You could also write Mrs. Smith's family scandal on every window in the house. You'll find this is a good way to get your windows washed.

Turn in a fire alarm, and after the guests have taken the furniture out on the lawn mop the floors.

One guy went to a house party and along toward evening he put on his hat and coat and started to leave. The hostess asked him where he was going, and he said: "Oh, I always quit work at 5 o'clock."

This was very rude. Guests who work at week-end parties should always wait for the whistle.

At this party every guest took one floor to clean. Some smart guy picked out the addition that was to be built next month.

Gentlemen should help the ladies at affairs like these. Always hold the door open for the hostess while she's taking the plane from one room to another.

You can also help her while she's lifting the bureau. Follow her and pick up the castors if they should fall out.

One woman carried a bureau upstairs, and the guy who picked up the castors after her got so tired out that he had to lie down.

It's an awful strain on a man to see a dame carry a bureau up a flight of stairs. He doesn't know any minute but what she's liable to drop it on him.

One guy spoke right up and said: "I'm not going to stand here and see you women do all this heavy work. No, I'm going out in the yard."

After your guests get the house all straightened up, the least you can do is to see that they get something to eat. Tell them where they can find a good restaurant.

We've had house warming parties for years. Why not start something new and have house cleaning parties?

PERSHING ASKS HARDING FOR 150,000 SOLDIERS

Washington, March 3 (By International News Service).—General John J. Pershing sought the aid of President Harding today to prevent Congress from carrying out its announced intention of cutting the regular army to 115,000 men. General Pershing believes that the regular army should not be cut to a lower authorized strength than 150,000 and he so informed the President at the White House.

GIRLS VICTIMS OF ATTACKS BY 'HUGGERS'

Pretty Woman in Quincy and Another in Fitchburg Fight Assailants

Two women in different cities of the State today are recovering from the effects of desperate battles with assailants of the "Hugger" type.

In Norfolk Downs Mrs. Margery Crockery, a pretty wife of twenty-five, who lives in Flynt street, while going home was seized by a young man of powerful build in a lonely portion of Newport avenue.

The "Hugger" grabbed her about the waist and dragged her to the edge of the road. She screamed and begged him to release her.

OFFERS HIM DIAMOND.

"I'll give you my diamond ring," she cried, wrenching the ring from her finger and offering it to him. The man scorned the ring and continued to drag her along.

In an effort to stifle her screams he relaxed his grip on her wrist to put his hand over her mouth. She broke away from him and fled down the street, turning into the first house she came to, crying for help at every step.

The occupants of the house sheltered her and notified the police, who, although they were soon there, were unable to find the assailant.

FIGHT HIM OFF.

In Fitchburg Mrs. Susie Nickerson another comely young woman, who lives on Green street, had just turned a dark corner on Harvard street when a "Hugger" leaped at her from the side of the street.

He, too, seized her about the waist, but Mrs. Nickerson, being of sturdy build, dealt him a smashing blow in the face and he let go.

The girl ran as fast as she could and had gone but a little way when she met Patrolman Hanley. Hanley started back at once, calling help with his police whistle. The assailant was then fleeing in the opposite direction and Hanley, with Patrolman Robichaud, who answered the whistle, chased him for two blocks. But he had too good a start and was swallowed up in the dark.

'Jim' Jeffries Balks at Playing Role of Evangelist

Los Angeles, March 3.—James J. Jeffries, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, has decided he is "too busy" on his ranch at Burbank, near Los Angeles, to become an evangelist.

Referring to a visit, said to have a bearing on the question which he had received from an old friend of his father, who was a minister, Jeffries said:

"He's a nice little fellow, but he's not going to make an evangelist out of me."

LABOR PARTY DEFEATED IN LONDON ELECTION

London, March 3.—(By International News Service).—Complete tabulation today of the returns in the London County Council election showed that the Labor party had lost its fight to gain control of the organization. The Reform party, which was fighting the Laborites, contended that the latter planned to set up a Bolshevist administration and Sovietize the city. The Laborites stood upon a platform calling for municipal control over all banks and public service corporations. The County Council administers the affairs of the metropolitan district of the city.

URGE CUT IN POLICE SICK BENEFITS

Worcester, March 2.—Believing that revision should be downward and that the slightest temptation to take advantage of the generosity of the association should be removed, the board of directors of the Worcester Police Relief Association has recommended to the members that the sick benefit be reduced from $3 to $2 per day. This will be acted upon at the next meeting of the association.

FATHER GIVES 3 PINTS OF BLOOD FOR BABY

Malden Infant Improved Immediately After Transfusion, Say Physicians

The life of three-day-old Baby Sodorosky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sodorosky, of No. 11 Clayton street, Malden, was saved today by three pints of blood drawn from the father's arm and applied through the child's head.

Almost immediately after birth it was noticed that the baby was failing rapidly owing to internal bleeding. Boston specialists decided that transfusion of blood alone could save the baby's life. The father volunteered and today submitted to the operation.

Experts watching the case reported an immediate and marked improvement in the child's condition and said there was hope of his complete recovery.

W. H. Chandler of Boston Cross-Examines Vice-President of Erie

Washington, March 3.—Railroads moved today before the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing into rate structures to contest the practically unanimous demand from shippers for lower rates on coal.

E. A. Cochran, assistant coal traffic manager of the Baltimore & Ohio, declared that average freights on coal today, considered in connection with coal prices, are proportionately lower than they were in 1914.

T. C. Powell, vice-president of the Erie Railroad, who concluded today a general defence of railroad policies prior to the opening of the coal subject, was asked on cross-examination by W. H. Chandler of Boston, representing the National Traffic League, whether the "recent 10 per cent. reduction on agricultural products had been instigated by economic conditions or political expediency."

"We have tried to keep politics out of this," Powell retorted.

"The reduction was given as an encouraging influence to the 30,000,000 people who constitute our farming population and who had been badly hit by deflation. It seems to have had the effect, though it has not increased traffic movements, and so far has decreased railroad revenues."

AGED ROXBURY COUPLE'S FUNERALS ARE HELD

CHINESE GIRLS PAINT LIKE YANKEE FLAPPERS

Washington, March 3.—Chinese women are getting into the "flapper" class. They are painting heavily. Chinese girls demand heavily perfumed toilet waters and expensive perfumes. IS YOUR CHILD SICK AND AILING?

Give It Gude's Pepto-Mangan —For Thirty Years Doctors' Favorite Tonic

Children that grow too fast and play too hard or perhaps work too hard at school (oh, yes, some children do work hard at school) become pale and a little run-down, and then mothers and fathers become worried about them. The youngsters do not eat with their usual big appetites, and so they become thin and tire out easily. There is a simple and good remedy for this. It is Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the tonic rich in a certain form of iron that is readily absorbed by the system. Gude's Pepto-Mangan will soon put the color back into the children's cheeks and give them the kind of an appetite every mother loves to see. It is sold by druggists in two forms—liquid and tablet—and is absolutely safe to give to any child. Ask your home doctor what he thinks about Gude's Pepto-Mangan.—Advertisement.

"Pink Bloomer Girl" Says Treat Mashers Roughly

EDNA RHEINHARDT

Edna Rheinhardt, who charges her dress was torn in struggle with assailant she beat off with an iron bar. She advises girls to use any weapon if attacked.

Young Woman Who Foiled Assailant by Hitting Him With Iron Bar, Declares Males Are Brutes

Treat mashers roughly.

Use a gun, knife or any other weapon if they attack you.

The majority of the male of the species are brutes by instinct anyway.

This is the advice to girls of twenty-three-year-old Edna Rheinhardt of No. 342 Tremont street, whose pink silk bloomers were torn, when, she charges, she was lured to No. 8 Oliver street and attacked by Cornelius P. Hanley, held for the grand jury in $2,000 bonds by Judge Bennett.

HIT HIM WITH IRON BAR.

The "pink bloomer girl" declares she escaped from Hanley only after she had struck him over the head several times with an iron bar.

Her story is this. A male voice, which she declares afterward found was that of Hanley, called the Tremont street restaurant where she is employed and asked for another girl employe, saying he had a package for her. The girl was out. The voice then requested that anyone call for the "package" as it was important and valuable and had to be delivered right away.

After consulting with the proprietor she went to the Oliver street building. There she met the man with the package, who she declares was Hanley. The latter offered her a drink. She refused. The man, she continued, said the package was upstairs in the locker room.

WHISKEY IN "PACKAGE."

Arrived there she found the "package" was a quart of whiskey. She said she refused to be a whiskey runner for anyone, and told the man she was going home. Then, she declares, she was attacked.

"He grabbed me tight. We wrestled all over the floor. He finally threw me on a settee. My pink bloomers and dress were torn. I screamed. He banged my head with his fists. I managed to get one arm free and smashed him in the face with my fist.

"Then finally when my strength was giving out I spied an iron bar on the floor. I managed to get it. I hit him several times over the head. He had me by the throat. At this moment a fireman came running in from downstairs.

MAN IS ARRESTED.

"I shrieked, ran down the stairs and got a policeman. The man was arrested."

Miss Rheinhardt still bears black and blue marks on her throat, arms and other parts of her body as a result of her struggle. She is a husky girl of 138 pounds. She came to Boston from Haverhill a little over a year ago, and is living at No. 343 Tremont street with friends of her family.

The bill would authorize expenditure of $50,000 for improvement of the Pawtucket River.

PASTOR AGREES TO ANNULMENT OF WEDDING

Charges Against New Britain Nestorian Priest-Bridegroom Are Dropped

By the Associated Press.

Newark, N. J., March 3.—Charges of threatening to kill his bride of three days, on which Rev. M. Simon Yonan, fifty-seven years old, a Nestorian priest of New Britain, Ct., was arrested last night, were dismissed today when the priest consented to an annulment of the ceremony which made twenty-one-year-old Julia Mishanna his wife.

The girl, who was reared in Palestine and does not speak English, declared she was tricked into the marriage. The pastor, she said, engaged her as a housekeeper and took her to the marriage license bureau under the pretext of obtaining "working papers."

She tried to protest when taken to a church for the marriage ceremony, she said, but could not make herself understood.

The threats to kill her and members of her family were alleged to have been made when she refused to take part in a wedding feast.

PRINCE SHOT AT IN INDIA, REPORT

Story Persists in London, Although Denied by the Government Officials

London, March 3 (By the Associated Press).—The Evening News today publishes what it characterizes as "an absurd rumor" which is being repeated in London that the Prince of Wales has been shot at in India.

Officials here know nothing of any such incident. The latest report from India says the Prince left Saiwari today for Peshawar.

Dispatches from India February 24 reported that members of the Prince of Wales' party had been fired upon while motoring from Delhi to Lutiana. An India office version of the incident later, however, declared that although one of the motor cars had been hit by a small object the missile was not a bullet but was probably a stone either thrown or kicked up by the wheels of the car.

FOREST HILLS JEWELER DEAD ON OFFICE FLOOR

The body of John Lowe of No. 239 Hyde Park avenue, Roxbury, a jeweler with offices in the Paddock Building, Tremont street, was found lying on the floor of his office by Low's son-in-law. When Low failed to return home at his customary time, the son-in-law went to the office and forced the door. Death probably was from natural causes.

BISHOP GAILOR DEFENDS THE FLAPPER

Women Today No Different From Those of Centuries Ago, Episcopal Head Says

By International News Service.

New York, March 3.—Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, head of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, today took up the cudgels for the flapper. In an interview he declared the modern girl is not so bad as painted, speaking both literally and figuratively.

As for the modern woman—

According to Bishop Gailor, women had reformers "het up" over the things they did to their faces and the way they wore their skirts even in the days when Methuselah was a boy.

"Woman is a new mystery every day," said the Bishop. "But she has not changed through the centuries.

"The woman of today is no different from the woman of our grandmother's day or from the woman who lived before Christianity.

"Read Matthew Arnold's triads, written of the Fourth Idyll of Theocritus, who lived 400 years before Christ. You find there two women conversing while they dress for a concert. The talk dress and discuss ways to humor and wheedle their husbands exactly in the same way as women do today. They might be New York women of 1922."

"No," continued the Bishop, "women are the same as they ever were. You can't change them and you can't lay down general rules for their conduct."

Speaking of the flapper, the church leader said:

"It is silly to charge mere kids with deep, dark immoral emotions and motives. There is nothing wicked about a girl who bobs her hair. If she wants to do it, why shouldn't she? Perhaps it is more becoming to her than long hair.

"You marvel at the amount of paint you see on girls' faces. Why, I often wonder how some of them open their mouths without cracking their faces.

"But I never worry about the follies of the young. Girls rouge and wear short skirts because it is the fashion. People are like sheep about following fashions. Young people are particularly so. When I was in college it was a fad for a time for the boys to wear mustaches and we all wore them. Then someone cut his off and we all followed suit.

"The young people of today are as good as young people ever were."

2 YOUTHS DESERTED BY DRIVER IN WORCESTER

Worcester, March 3.—Edward Martin of Boston and Alfred Heath of Malden were deserted in Worcester without a cent after they had worked for the driver of a truck in Boston and Worcester. They did not know the man's name. They told the local police they were forced work by the truck driver on Tremont street, Boston. They worked for him there and in Worcester. The driver stopped at a local restaurant to eat and the two helpers went for a short walk. They returned in about five minutes, they said, and the truck was gone. The police provided them with lodging.

TREATY LOOKS BEATEN, HARD DECLARES

Brandegee and Moses Sought by Battalion of Death to Oppose Pact

By WILLIAM HARD, Cosmopolitan News Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1922)

Washington, March 3.—The four-power treaty looks beaten. Speculation is turning to the question of what the international policy of the United States will have to be if the policy laid down in this treaty is discarded.

A survey of the situation among both Republicans and Democrats and also among representatives of foreign nations at Washington reveals the following facts:

It is admitted that things look much worse for the four-power treaty than they looked for the treaty of Versailles at a corresponding stage of the fight against it. The Republican irreconcilables of the treaty of Versailles numbered only about fourteen. Today the Democratic opponents of the four-power treaty are counted as certainly twenty-six. Word has been sent from among them to the Republican opponents of the treaty that if the Republicans can produce seven votes against the treaty it cannot be ratified.

Johnson, Borah, France and LaFollette have not abandoned hope of finding three fellow Republicans. Frank Brandegee of Connecticut may be restored to his membership in the old Battalion of Death.

It is also thought that George Moses of New Hampshire is not a happy and satisfied member of the forces favoring the treaty. McCormick of Illinois and Norris of Nebraska, being old irreconcilables, may be converted to opposition to the treaty.

It is also said that Ladd of North Dakota, among the Republicans, might be swung against the treaty because his organization at home, the Non-Partisan League, is regarded as opposed to "foreign entanglements." Such hope is also entertained of Pepper of Pennsylvania, who was prominent in the early stages of the fight against the league of nations. Today, though, it looks as if the Democrats might muster more than twenty-six votes against the treaty.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN WILL START MAY 30

The following officers were elected: George C. Morton, chairman; James B. Lord, treasurer; Joseph N. Baker, secretary.

It was decided that the opening period of the Clean Up Campaign for intensive clean up work will be the first two weeks in May. The campaign will start on Sunday, April 30.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Hundred Club's Last Dance Still Topic of Interest

By BETTY ALDEN.

SCARCER than the proverbial hen's teeth are the balls and more formal dances which the social calendar still has to offer society folk for the remainder of the season. But they say that anticipation and memories are often far more enjoyable than events themselves, so that members of the smart set are busily chatting over the teacups, about the many brilliant terpsichorean entertainments of the Winter.

The most recent of these was the regular weekly meeting of the Hundred Club held last Thursday night at the Copley-Plaza. These occasions always rank among the smartest events on the social calendar, but last week's meeting was of especial interest, as the prize waltz competition brought the evening to a brilliant close.

Miss Ethel Morse and Lawrence Higgins had the distinction of being awarded the attractive silver loving cups, with Miss Mabel Bresner and Kenneth Pillsbury winners of the second prize. The judges were Tarrant P. King, chairman, with Mrs. D. Forest Dandelson, Mrs. Dudley Howe and Charles P. Greenough, 2nd.

Over there hundred members and guests of the club attended and it is no exaggeration to say that "a good time was had by all." In fact, the Hundred Club's assemblies seem to be the one bright feature—lugubriously speaking—of an otherwise darkened Lenten season. The club will keep on its weekly meetings on Tuesday nights through Lent, the next special feature coming on the 21st of the month, when the annual poverty costume ball will be held.

As everyone knows, these meetings of the Hundred Club have come to take the place, more or less, of the famed Assemblies so well known in pre-war days. It was no less a person than Mr. Hooper Hooper who ruled supreme over these Assemblies, to which only the creme de la creme of the socially elect were granted admittance. Whether or not these Assemblies will be revived at some future time is mostly a matter of speculation. A goodly portion of the "four hundred" seems thoroughly content with the Hundred Club's dances, nor have the latter entertainments proved themselves amenable to that much-detested person—the social climber. Quite the contrary.

If you have any little children, why not take them to the Exeter Theatre tomorrow morning to see some good pictures and at the same time help some other little children?

A group of prominent society women, headed by Mrs. Reed Estabrook of Chestnut Hill, have arranged to put on this "movie" performance in aid of the Boston Children's Friend Society, which is conducting a quiet campaign for $20,000 toward their budget this year. The drive for funds has been organized by Mrs. William H. Coolidge of Beacon street and "Blyman Farm," Magnolia, who announces that last year the society gave aid, advice and foster care to 902 children of Greater Boston. William C. Chick of Commonwealth avenue is treasurere.

The program for tomorrow morning's entertainment includes "Peck's Bad Boy," with Jackie Coogan; "Pathe News," and "Outwitting the Timber Wolf," each number especially chosen for boys and girls. A similar entertainment will be given at the Exeter Theatre on Saturday morning, March 25 for the same benefit.

Miss Katherine Coolidge, daughter of Mrs. William H. Coolidge, will have charge of a group of young society girls who have volunteered their services as ushers for the occasion. This group includes Miss Katherine Winslow, Laura Taylor, Helene Sullivan and Rose Fessenden as well as several others.

Among the prominent matrons who have lent their names to the affair and who are helping Mrs. Estabrook are Mesdames John T. Alden, Arthur M. Beale, Prescott Bigelow Jr., William C. Chick, George Cutler, Jr., J. Philip Hartt, Chandler Hovey, Edward Hamlin, Charles W. Hubbard, Jr., Robert W. Knowles, Robert W. Leatherbee, Malcolm Lang, Otis Weld Richardson, Robert Walcott and Orrin G. Wood.

Betty Alden

Miss Ethel Morse, with her partner, Lawrence Higgins, a Harvard '18 man, won the prize waltz competition held at a recent assembly of the Hundred Club. Society is looking forward to the annual poverty costume ball which the club will give on the 21st of the month. In the meantime, the Hundred Club will continue its weekly dances at the Copley - Plaza through the Lenten season.

MISS ETHEL MORSE

IT'S NOT ELBOW GREASE BUT SOAP FAT THAT TAKES DIRT OUT

Some laundresses wash as if they would rub the very ridges off the washboard—and yet the clothes look grey.

Other laundresses hardly seem to do any rubbing at all—and the clothes come out spotlessly clean and white.

The difference is that the latter use science; and science has taught us that it isn't elbow grease but soap fat that takes dirt out.

In Rinso, the scientific balance of soap fats with other cleansing materials has been found. Its almost magical suds just soak out the dirt that your muscles used to have to rub away.

When you use Rinso you need do no rubbing except on the particularly soiled places that always do need special attention, and yet your clothes will be as clean as if you had toiled over them in the old back-breaking way.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

THE Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge were recently entertained at dinner by Mrs. John B. Henderson. Included among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Denegre, who are well-known in Boston society circles, as they spend a good part of their time at their Summer estate in Manchester on the North Shore. Peter, General Pershing, Mrs. Federick Dent Grant, Miss Helen Wolcott, Lord Richard Nevill, Prince Radziwill, Raymond T. Baker and Robert S. Brookings.

Mrs. Winston H. Hagen of East Sixty-eighth street, New York, has announced the engagement of her older daughter, Miss Virginia Winston Hagen, to Alvin Devereaux, also of New York. Mr. Devereaux, who is the youngest son of Mr. Walter B. Devereaux, is a lawyer with the firm of Beekman, Menken & Griscom. He was graduated from Princeton in 1912 and from the Harvard Law School in 1915. He holds memberships in the Ivy Club of Princeton, the Racquet and Tennis, Princeton and Harvard clubs of New York, and the Rockaway Hunt Club. The wedding is to take place at Oyster Bay the latter part of next June.

The second of the series of dances being given by the Samedi Soir Club at the Palm Beach Country Club will be held tomorrow night. The executive committee includes Gurnee Munn, James Hyde, J. H. Coeden, Harry P. Bingham, Caleb Bragg, Douglas Paige, Harry Darlington and C. J. Dunphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Quincy Adams Shaw, 2d, of Boston, have arrived in New York and are at the Hotel Plaza for a few days.

Mrs. Eugene Van Rensselaer Thayer and Miss Gladys Livermore, both well known in Boston, are returning to their home in New York following a sojourn at Hot Springs, Va. Mrs. Thayer is a member of the Chilton Club here.

THE afternoon dress that sparkles is at its best during tea hour, and one of mauve crepe marocain, embroidered in crystal beads, would be utterly adorable in motion. The round neck, the low waistline and the bell sleeves that come to points at the wrist are the becoming details one looks to a frock of this sort to possess.

POIRET does something interesting with even the most unpretentious of tissues, but given cachemire in a gorgeous horizon blue and a bit of blue and ivory brocade, the result is Poiret at his most fascinating. The bodice derives its slender length of line from the Spanish, while the combining of two tissues is in deference to the mode as France sees it.

NEW INVASION IS FEARED BY SOVIET

Riga, March 3 (By International News Service).—As a result of the postponement of the Genoa Economic Conference Leon Trotzky, commissar for war, has issued an order to the officers of the army and navy immediately to explain to every soldier and sailor that the present international situation requires the greatest attention, efficiency and readiness for action on the part of all armed forces, said a dispatch from Moscow today.

Trotzky said that Russia's hopes have received a new blow in consequence of the postponement. Russia, he said, had expected a satisfactory agreement with the capitalistic governments at Genoa entailing pledges of the inviolability of the frontiers.

If the safety of the borders were assured, Trotzky is quoted as saying, the Russians would be enabled to reduce their army and navy and concentrate all energies upon peaceful pursuits.

The postponement of the conference and the new rumors of threatened invasion by "white guards" has shaken the optimism and confidence of the Moscow Soviet. It is reported that General Wrangel already is gathering forces for another campaign against the Reds.

TROUBLE GROWS IN INDIAN PROVINCES

London, March 3 (By the Associated Press).—Scattering reports to the newspapers indicate the situation in India is causing increasing anxiety to the authorities, particularly in the Punjab and the United Provinces of Bengal.

There is said to be danger in Bengal that the members of the old revolutionary party will take control of the political movement out of the hands of the Nationalist Congress party owing to the anger of the extremists at the postponement of civil disobedience.

The Daily Telegraph says that agitation is growing in all the above-named districts where the situation is getting more and more out of the control of the authorities. The report of the impending arrest of Mohandas K. Gandhi, Non-Cooperationist leader, is reiterated.

The Daily Mail says the Prince of Wales has abandoned his intention to visit Amritsar, where, it is recalled, troops fired on agitators in April, 1919, killing 380 persons. The reason for the alteration in the Prince's plans is not stated.

BONUS IS URGED BY VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS

Post in Quincy Not Opposed to Adjusted Compensation as Paper Falsely Stated

The telegram [illegible] to arrange for Sunday afternoon meetings throughout the State to protest against Congressional delay in passing the bonus bill. He was told to seek the co-operation of American Legion heads and especially to "ask assistance of the nearest Hearst newspaper."

VETERANS TELL HOW BONUS WILL HELP THEM

Letters From All Parts of New England Swamp Petition Editor

Washington, March 3.—The working out of details of the compromise soldiers' bonus bill was completed today by the special sub-committee of the House Ways and Means Committee Republicans and it was announced that the redrafted measure would be presented to the entire committee membership, Republicans and Democrats, next Tuesday.

[illegible] the stand taken by the Boston American for the payment of a cash bonus to veterans of the World War, continue to swamp the office of the American's petition editor.

The letters come from all parts of New England. From small towns in Maine and New Hampshire, from manufacturing towns in Connecticut, from villages in eastern Massachusetts, the ex-service men are writing to add their bits of testimony to the overwhelming mass of evidence in favor of the project.

Some of the men have been out of work for months. They tell pitiful tales of inability to support a wife and child, of [illegible] from France to find their [illegible] "stay at homes" of desperate efforts to make both ends meet.

The men, judging from the tone of their letters, are in no danger of making foolish expenditures of the money that is to come to them. From all sides comes the cry: "If only the bonus bill is passed I can pay my debts, get some clothes for my family and start life over again."

One veteran writes a letter that might be good reading for those who cry against the bigness of the "foreigner." This chap came to this country [illegible] years ago from Europe, and was obliged to lie about his age to gain admittance to the army of his adopted country when war was declared. He went overseas with the Twenty-Sixth Division. And here's how he describes what happened next:

"We fought hard and fought well to keep the ones over here safe, but now that it is all over, the ones that were here and making hundreds and thousands of dollars, are the ones to oppose the bonus. And that is the way they would treat the men who offered their lives for their safety.

But we think that that we have one paper that is helping us, and we will win with their help. There are many of us that need the bonus and need it bad."

From [illegible] comes a letter from the [illegible] Club of that city announcing that that organization has gone on record unanimously as favoring the Hearst plan for a sales tax to pay for the bonus. And a man who lives on Ashburton place, in Boston, writes as follows:

"Give our boys their bonus without delay and allow us "American citizens" to look our soldiers in the face without feeling the [illegible] of disloyalty and broken promises."

An ex-service man on whose ears the announcement that "the boys don't need a bonus" falls, writes as follows:

"All the thanks in the world to the Boston American for the stand they are taking for the soldiers' bonus. I am an ex-soldier and have been out of work for the last six months and have a wife and a child. What the war did for me is that my back is at the wall now and I have to live on the charity of my wife's mother. Some of the men in Congress say we do not need a bonus. Tell them to come and see me and see if I need it or not."

Among those who added their names to the list of supporters of the American's bonus plan is Representative Coleman E. Kelly of Dorchester. He insisted that the only objection to the [illegible] is that raised by the [illegible] interests of the country and added: "It is the duty of every American citizen to go on record in favor of this bonus bill."

Bonus Resolution Is Introduced in Legislature

The House suspended its rules and admitted resolutions to Congress to provide for a suitable bonus to those serving the United States in the World War and to [illegible] the activities of the government [illegible] war veterans. The resolutions, which came from the committee on rules, were presented by Representative John Thomas of Gloucester and Representative Joseph [illegible] of Boston.

The resolutions set forth the need of the bonus and deplore the delay in enacting and to those soldiers who suffered in the World War. The [illegible] of the Massachusetts Legislature [illegible] that governmental inefficiency [illegible] administration of necessary [illegible] legislation is set forth and it is urged that a copy of the resolutions be sent to President Harding and the members of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress.

FRANCE AWAITS NOTE ON DEBT TO AMERICA

Typewriter Repair Man Is Knocked Unconscious and His Kit Bag Taken Away

Aaron Kazangian, repair man employed by the Royal Typewriter Company of Devonshire street, Boston, told the Salem police today that he was knocked down and robbed of his kit [illegible] by a man in the hall of the Salem High School today.

Kazangian had made a call at the [illegible] Trust Company, Lynn, and as he left noticed a man following him but believed that the fellow was a "dry agent" and suspected him of being a bootlegger.

The repair man went to the high school at Salem, which is closed for a holiday, and where he had another job. When he started to leave the bandit was standing outside [illegible]. Without warning the robber, he says, he was struck over the head and knocked senseless. When he came to himself he found his repair kit and bag gone. CARUSO THROAT MARVELOUS ORGANISM

Doctors He Left It to Describe Amazing Construction of Tenor's Vocal Cords

Rome, March 3 (By the Associated Press).—The throat of Enrico Caruso, which was left at the time of his death to the Naples Museum for medical examination, was reproduced pictorially by Rome newspapers today, which published the opinion of doctors who describe it as the most extraordinary development known for vocalization.

Caruso's vocal cords were twice normal length, and his breathing power was described as phenomenal. The [illegible] was as thick as that of the deepest bass singers, while its attachment to the tongue was of such a nature as to permit the greatest [illegible] of vibrations, thus accounting for the immense range of the great tenor's voice.

His lung power was so enormous that he could make the cords of a piano vibrate by merely breathing upon them. The doctors describe Caruso's lungs as those of a superman, and declare that from head to foot he was a magnificent singing machine.

BRAVES IN FLAG FIGHT FROM DROP OF THE HAT

By NICK FLATLEY.

Another Boston baseball season slid into actuality today. The northern squads of both native large league outfits were to depart for the southern training camps to start grinding off the rough edges.

Manager Mitchell escorted the Brave flock, and Manager Duffy the Sox. [illegible] with the National Leaguers, believing that they have a [illegible] chance to get somewhere before the campaign [illegible] into history.

* * *

Mitch was booked to leave this evening on the Federal, with a gang of local rookies. There were three pitchers—[illegible] Morgan the Middleboro youth, who is to get his final tryout, Letty Anderson and Charley Paul, the latter a Canadian southpaw, reputed to have a lot of stuff as a Canadian should have.

* * *

There was also Duffy O'Reagan, the Boston College backstop, who will have a chance to show something. Duff is supposed to be one of those natural hitters. Jimmy Neary, trainer, and a fleet of correspondents completed the Boston tourists.

At Providence, little Johnny Cooney was to attach himself to the party Saturday. Gene Lansing, pitcher and Jim Wilson, catcher, join up at Washington. Since the disarmament conference there are plenty of good tea[illegible] to be collected at the capital.

Manager Mitch will see no more pretenders until he reaches St. Petersburg Sunday night, but quite a throng will be waiting there to start the preliminaries Monday morning. Pitcher Frank Miller, after a two year layoff, will be among those present. So too, will Garland Braxton, the [illegible] left hander who [illegible] up quite a few good games [illegible] A. Pierotti, [illegible] Townsend and a newcomer young Mister Stearns of Texas are [illegible] booked to engage in the opening practice.

* * *

Catchers Mickey O'Neil and Frank Gibson will be on hand to work out the youthful pitching prodigies, while Hennery Gowdy will linger for a week with the Hot Springs contingent.

* * *

The newly signed and the young sters who are getting their last shot at fame will have a week to their [illegible] St. Pete. Manager [illegible] will [illegible] them go twice a day and [illegible] the regulars arrive [illegible] the slow [illegible] will have a very good idea of the value of his prospects.

Warming up the kids before the vets arrive is a new notion, and should give the young fellows a lot of breaks. Many a [illegible] has been sent back to the sticks because he [illegible] an opportunity at a training camp.

Under the present system, the aspirants will be a few jumps ahead [illegible] regulars in fine form to [illegible] the old timers and keep them too busy to pull the top lofty stuff that marks many a Spring camp.

* * *

Dick Rudolph and the pitchers reach St. [illegible] in time to start work with the varsity athletes a week from Monday, and the flingers will have their arms in very fine shape to force the other players from the blowoff. Ball players who see real pitching in the Spring don't have to wait a month before finding themselves in the league races. Mitch intends to get the Braves off to a flying start.

* * *

Manager Fred is as optimistic as you'd expect him to be, starting another campaign. He never was so hopeful before in the Spring, even when he knew the Cubs were going to be champions, or his Harvard youths conquerors of Yale.

"The one trade we made," declares Mitch, "strengthened the club just where it needed strength. We have an extra infielder now and a left handed pitcher. Those two birds would have put us out in front last September.

"This year we know our strength and will be fighting from the start. We hope to open the race with our pitchers in shape, not nursing sore arms as they were a year ago.

"Just let a couple of the young fellows come through and we'll be all set. Then we have a couple of extra birds that may mean a whole lot of difference. I mean Frank Miller and Lefty Tyler.

* * *

"Miller, up to the time he quit, was fully as good a pitcher as John Scott; better in my candid opinion. If Frank can get into shape the players of that Red trade will be all velvet. Tyler may come back. If he does, enough to win half a dozen games, we'll be that much to the good. If he doesn't, it will not make the slightest difference.

SIEGAL ANXIOUS TO BATTLE BRITTON

Nate Wants to Fight Jack for the Welterweight Championship Crown

By RINGSIDE.

Nate Siegal, through his managers, Messrs. Carter and [illegible], today let the world in on the fact he is anxious to battle Jack Britton for the world's welterweight championship.

"Siegal is the greatest welterweight in the world," was the [illegible] shot of the twin managers. "He can defeat Jack Britton just as easily as he [illegible] conquer a dozen of the other [illegible] welterweights.

"I think Nate proved he is a real comeback by the great battle he put up against Eddie Shevlin. Then you don't want to forget his victory over Tommy Robson and the way he battled Mickey Walker, although he lost the decision in the mill with the New Jersey warrior.

"Now we want Britton. Nate will beat him [illegible] at the welterweight limit of 145 pounds at 3 o'clock."

* * *

Fat McCarthy, Roxbury light heavyweight, is in New York today as a member of Harry Greb's training camp. Greb be it known, is battling Tom Gibbons at Madison Square Garden on March 13. Gibbons also made a bid for McCarthy's services but Pat decided to go with Greb as Harry served with him in the navy.

When McCarthy [illegible] up with Greb, he will probably join Jack Dempsey's camp. The experience McCarthy will gain boxing with Greb and Dempsey should do a lot to give him confidence in his own ability.

JOHNNY RILEY WINS FROM MONTY CROSS

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 3.—Johnny Riley of this city defeated Monty Cross of New York last night in one of the best welter scraps seen in the coal regions for years. Riley's terrific body blows made Cross back up repeatedly.

Riley will battle Dave Shade here March 15.

CLINTON BEGINS TRAINING FOR LEONARD BOUT

By JACK CONWAY

Johnny Clinton, New England lightweight champion, left for Diamond Hill, Rhode Island, today to begin training for his ten round battle with Benny Leonard, world's champion, which will be staged at the Boston Arena on March 20 for the Elks' charity fund.

Eddie Mack has made arrangements for Clinton to work out with Bill Brennan, Dave Shade and the other prominent fighters who are now [illegible] training resort.

Billy Gibson, manager of Leonard, has notified the Boston Lodge of Elks that the champion will positively appear here.

* * *

"Leonard will not box between now and March 20," stated Gibson, in a telephone conversation with George Freeman, who is doing the matchmaking for the Elks. "We have passed up the March 17 bout with Charley White," continued Gibson, "and so there is no doubt about Benny being able to battle Clinton. The hand which he injured in his tussle with Pal Moran at New Orleans will be all right in a few days. The champion will then begin training."

* * *

The bout is expected to play to more [illegible]

* * *

Mike Paulson, the St. Paul Tornado has arrived in town looking for matches with the best in New England, and has placed himself under the direction of Eddie Mack. Paulson boxed around here about five years ago and was a very satisfactory performer.

Since he has been away he has boxed with good men as Charley White, Pinkey Mitchell, Ritchie Mitchell, George K. O. Chaney and Mel Coogan. The St. Paul [illegible] held these men pretty even and he would like nothing better than to get a crack at Jimmy Fruzzetti or Johnny Shugrue of Worcester.

* * *

Clinton has already battled Leonard in a ten round bout. He knows the champ on a [illegible] and figures he has a chance of winning in their battle here.

"And if Clinton puts over the big smash," declared Eddie Mack today, "we'll drop into vaudeville for forty weeks. Then for sixteen weeks [illegible] we'll be ready to sign for a bout with anybody Clinton can lick. Tra la la! Guess we won't make Princess Mary's wedding look just like an ordinary affair when we start our celebration."

* * *

The general public may secure reservations to the Elks show at the Boston Lodge on [illegible] street.

* * *

Harry Carlson and Newman Reagan are expected to furnish a lively tilt when they mingle in a ten round bout at the Olympic A. C. of Brockton tonight. As there is intense rivalry between these boys, Matchmaker Billy Goodrich looks for a big turnout of fans.

* * *

Naumkeag A. A. of Salem also offers an attractive card for this evening. Tommy Corbley of Gloucester will try to dispose of Dinny Glynn of Roxbury in one ten rounder, while in the other ten session affair Billy Meyers of this city will battle Charley Sheppard of Peabody. There will also be a couple of sixes.

* * *

Young Gould of Brockton will clash with Mickey Donley of Providence at Woonsocket tonight. Gould has won four starts at Woonsocket and believes he will add Donley to his list of victims. Donley is one of Rhode Island's big winners and has an idea he will upset the Brockton whirlwind.

* * *

Jack Burns writes as follows:

"Just a few words in regard to Jimmy Fruzzetti winning fights on fouls. In his boxing career he has won seven bouts this way. Will any [illegible] fan that saw these bouts say he didn't get fouled, more than once, in each case? Some fans advance the argument, that although he is fouled he should go on again and give the people a run for their money.

"If he was sent out to box in a weakened condition after being fouled and was beaten, these same fans would be the first ones to say that the man that sent him out was a fool.

* * *

"The real reason for Fruzzetti getting fouled is that he is one of the hardest hitting lightweights in the world. Rather than be knocked out his opponents prefer to lose on a foul. In each case he has won on a foul there have been different officials. Can they all be dummies or are they pulling a bone. If Fruzzetti was losing on fouls then there might be some ground to place the blame on him.

"True the fans don't get a run for their money but why blame Jimmy, a boy that has never been warned by a referee for any unfair tactics? Jimmy is the best lightweight in New England and as he proved when he beat Johnny Clinton the last time they met and is willing to do it over again.

This Day in History—March 3, 1922

THIS is the anniversary of the sailing, in 1513, of Ponce de Leon from Spain to find the fabled Fountain of Youth in the New World. Needless to say, he failed, but his quest has become historical.

Oldest English Clock

THE oldest English-made clock known is in the tower of the palace at Hampton Court, where it was placed in 1554. It was so complete that it showed the motions of several of the planets, in addition to measuring the time.

A Delightfully Refreshing Story of Love and a Woman's Way With a Man

THE STORY SO FAR

James Edgerton, 44, of an old and aristocratic New York family, returns to New York from abroad on hearing that the firm founded by his forbears has failed. He pays dollar for dollar and finds himself left with an inherited apartment luxuriously furnished, which an iron-clad will has entailed. With two dollars in his pockets he refuses the offer of an old-time friend to help, goes to the apartment, and finds it occupied by two charming young women, distant cousins, who beg him to forgive them for being there. They are as poor as he is and have advertised for a position, using the apartment as their headquarters. They ask him to let them stay until they get employment. All three form a partnership to seek work together. A position is secured with the family of Mr. Rivett, rich, but ignorant of social customs. They arrive at his estate in the Berkshires.

A MOMENT later Silvette and Diana entered, slender and youthful, with all the softly flushed charm of eighteen and the winning composure of a wider experience than eighteen years can ever lend.

Colonel Curnew presently outflanked Silvette, forcing her skillfully into a momentary retreat toward the recess of a window, where he blockaded her and curled his mustache with satisfied zest and shot his cuffs and prepared to drive in her outer pickets.

Diana remained in quiet conversation with Mrs. Rivett, the latter shy, wistful, and ill at ease by turns; the former sweet and deferential, yet all the while composedly taking the measure of the others in the room and of the room itself, vaguely aware in her apparently absorbing preoccupation that she was winning a perplexed and timid heart.

Cocktails were served—unusual ones that had a scent like the original Ricky, that is, the aromatic odor of wild blossoms.

The little gray woman barely tasted hers, with that same inborn instinct, perhaps, that imposed those oblivious hostesses in the days when viands and wines sometimes proved fatal.

Then Edgerton relieved her of her scarcely touched glass; took Diana's, too, which was still half full. Mrs. Rivett rose and gave him her arm, to his surprise; Mr. Rivett took in Diana, his son Silvette. The name of Edgerton had counted heavily.

In the dining room everything was grossly overdone except the cookery—the sort of thing most calculated to annoy and bore the very man most accustomed to it in town; profusion akin to the plethora which offends; effort impossible to disguise which stirs even in the most good natured and generous an unwilling contempt.

Edgerton let his eyes rest for a moment, outside the silver and crystal set circle of light, on gold, heavy carving, gilded tapestry and picture, and withdrew his gaze gravely. Men servants swarmed, bothering him; the scent of greenhouse blossoms, forced before their time; the heavy magnificence out of place—all slightly disgusted him, though more of it was about what he had expected of such people.

Little Miss Rivett, on his left, dissected her terrapin with the healthy attention of youth and hunger, and presently, he turned to look at her with amused but wholly amiable curiosity.

He saw a small plump, dainty, maid, with exceedingly clear and bright brown eyes and a softly brilliant complexion, looking back at him with unconcealed interest.

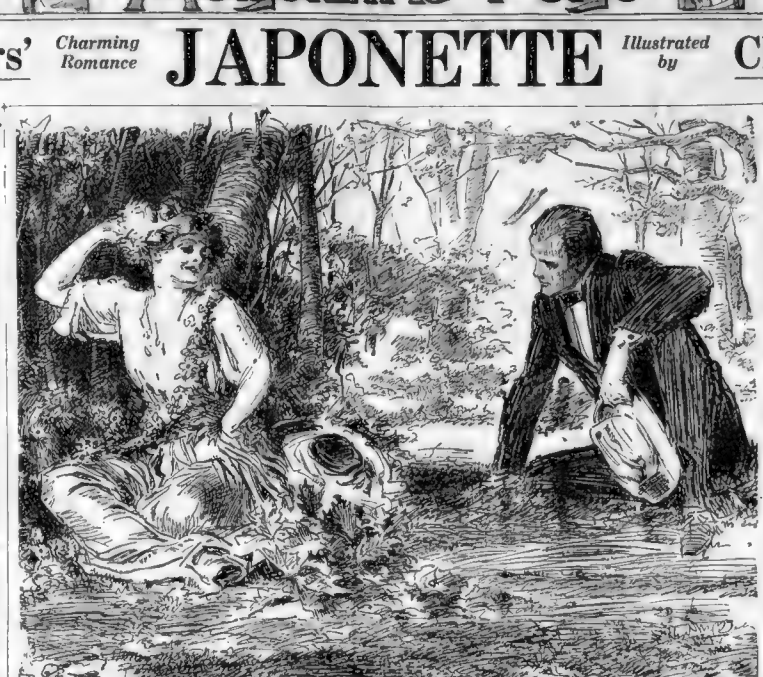

There's was a moment's silence, then they both smiled.

"Do you think you'll like us?" she asked saucily; "or do you hate us already?"

"Not the slightest doubt of my liking you, Miss Rivett; but how about your liking us?"

"Your cousins are most bewitching and bewildering. . . . You seem to be nice, are you?"

"Very," he said, laughing. "I'm glad you gave me an opportunity of saying so because otherwise it might not have been perfectly clear to you."

Drawn by Charles Dana Gibson

Edgerton lets Diana see that he is in love with her.

"I am rather fastidious," she said. "How well do you dance?"

"My grace in that praiseworthy pastime is genuine."

"Really?"

"Unbearably."

"You are very British, aren't you?"

"Do you refer to my little play upon words?"

"No, generally, that was merely a touch of local color. Naturally, also, you fashionoridetohoundsand playpole; do you?"

"Also gawf, dear lady."

"Perfectly symmetrical and indisputable from others of your kind I thought so. Cricky, too."

"Certainly crocky," he admitted; "also no bank account. You may call me mad with impunity."

"Perhaps you're not entirely qualified. How do you stand on the heiress question Mr Edgerton?"

"I can't qualify there."

"Then you're a sham. Besides, you're neither clever nor gallant I am an heiress."

"Then I qualify at once as a fortune hunter," he said laughingly, "and I'll cable for my solicitors."

"What are you saying?" asked Mrs. Rivett in her gentle, uncertain voice

"Mother, Mr. Edgerton and I are going to be friends. Perhaps he isn't sure of it, but I am. Tell him what happens when I am sure of anything"

"Dear, perhaps Mr. Edgerton doesn't quite understand your manner of saying things"

"That's just it; he does understand! He is going to turn out exceedingly nice, mother; watch him!"

"Christine! Please be a little less personal and abrupt."

They turned, smiling, toward the other end of the table where much laughter sounded. Evidently Diana and Silvette were becoming very popular, and, somehow, it occurred to Edgerton that perhaps this great room had not often resounded with mirth.

But the chatter and laughter were incessant now; so were the servants' ministrations, and Edgerton was glad enough to give his arm to the faded little woman beside him and take her to her great, gilded chair in the drawingroom, and follow the men to another room, where blue smoke from cigars presently floated to the ceiling.

Jack Rivett, rather too plump and smooth, moved into a chair beside Edgerton; and the latter, who had prejudged him from his appearance, was slightly surprised to find the youth widely read, widely traveled, with a mind and even a wit entirely his own, and an original but sometimes callow comment for any subject brought up.

In the desultory conversation it presently transpired that young Rivett was a candidate for the Patroon's Club.

"You're a member, I believe; are you not?" he asked Edgerton.

"I have resigned."

"Oh, I thought that was one club from which nobody ever resigned. I beg your pardon, Edgerton" he added, turning red, "don't think me a cad."

"No offense," smiled Edgerton; "I resigned because I couldn't afford it. It's a good club; hope you make it soon."

"I hope I do . . . But we've rather recent additions—if we are additions—to New York. You never can tell what New Yorkers will do to people like us," he added laughingly.

"New York is practically composed of recent residents," said Edgerton, smiling

"They're the most pitiless to newcomers. I wouldn't be very much afraid if we had only your sort to encounter. If you old residents like a man, he gets his hat check ultimately," and pauses in; but it lies with the sidewalk speculators now. The seats of the mighty are in their hands."

Edgerton was much amused

"Not entirely," he said, "even we older residents are asked about now and then"

"Into which of the three circles—Smart, Knickerbocker, or Old Testament"

Edgerton was laughing so frankly that Rivett senior turned his convex glasses on him; and, deciding that the laughter was genuine and not included in services, went on with his business conversation with a Mr. Smith—a large, soft skinned gentleman deeply immersed in oil and cotton

Colonel Curnew came over briskly, expelling smoke

"What are you youngsters playing this evening" Auction or Chinese Kahn"

"However they choose to make up the tables," said Jack Rivett lazily Then, as though on an after thought "I doubt whether Mr. Edgerton bothers with cards, do you"

"I don't mind, except that I've cut out playing for stakes," replied Edgerton, perfectly aware of Jack Rivett's kindly consideration in giving him a chance to escape gracefully, and a trifle amused, too, that the young man should suppose he cared what anybody in the place might think of him.

Servants were now arranging the old-fashioned colonial card tables in the not readily old fashioned colonial drawingroom. A young girl on sight appeared at the arched doorway, lingering on the threshold as vercla of the room came out to guess.

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

AN ABSORBING SERIAL OF LIFE IN THE CITY

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.)

"WE are having a bad time with our cars today," he added. "The going is awful rough. And it's gettin' worse. It will be something fierce by night

"Yes; I am afraid it will," Adelaide answered.

"Something fierce by night" she repeatedly softly, as she went back to the shelter of the front door of the apartment house to wait for the cab. "Goodness only knows when Miss Patricia will get back from the country. And Heaven only knows how I am to keep her poor mother from knowing that she has not returned. Shall I have to lie again?"

She waited nervously until the taxi arrived, then urged the driver to get her across town as rapidly as possible. She must not keep Patricia Hollingshead waiting. The possibility of doing that added to her nervousness. Yet surely she was not to blame for the mistake about the order, nor for the "bad going" of which the driver complained

In spite of this reasoning she sat with hands tightly clasped all the way home. The chauffeur drove around instead of across the park The snow was getting too deep, he explained, for him to venture on any short-cuts

The butler opened the door of the Hollingshead house as Adelaide hurried up the front steps

"I was watchin' for you," he remarked. "Miss Patricia has asked several times if you was home yet."

"The storm delayed me," was the brief response. Then she went on upstairs.

Patricia was waiting for her outside Mrs. Hollingshead's door

"I am glad you're home at last!" she exclaimed. "I have been sitting on a tack for the past half-hour. I expected you back at 5."

"I am sorry." Adelaide apologized. "There was a mistake about the order for the taxi, and the streets are hard to drive through."

Well, never mind about that" was the impatient reply. "Just run up and take off your things and come down to mother. I shall be late as it is."

"I will take my coat and hat off here, so as not to detain you longer," Adelaide suggested, suiting the action to the word

"Good," the rich girl approved. "Estelle!" she called to the maid, who was passing through the hall, "come and take Miss Adelaide's things up to her room. Now," to Adelaide, "go in to mother and prepare her for the fact that I shall be out late. I have not dared tell her the truth. She has been putting me through the third degree when I come in at what hour I expect to return. To steer her off that track"

"I will do my best," Adelaide said.

She turned away abruptly, oncemore irritated with this favorite of fortune who expected all things to serve her whims

Mrs. Hollingshead greeted her attendant with a smile that was tremendous.

"Oh, my dear!" she complained, "I have a horrid headache"

"That is too bad," the girl sympathized, "Have you sat up too long?"

"No. I was all right when Henry left me an hour or so ago. But my talk with Patty upset me. I hoped to have a good talk with the child, but somehow I didn't I asked her about the affairs she had been attending lately, but she told me only a little and did not seem to want to tell me more About that dinner for tonight, for instance

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

TOM GREEN, who was a selfish chap, for Number One kept rooting life said, with smiles upon his map: "I'll win, as sure as shooting. No other's rights shall interfere with my desires or pleasure; I'll boost myself from year to year and give myself good measure I'll try to get the best always, no matter what I'm doing; I'll show how selfish plotting pays, for that's what I'm pursuing. I'll never lift another's load nor lighten any labor; but swat the chap that's in my road, though he be friend or neighbor" Sam Smith shed sunshine on his way by helping friends and cousins; he did some kindly deed each day and boosted men by dozens Said he: "It is a joyous thing to push folks up the ladder, and when I've made some brother rise it gives leaves me gladder." Upon his ruthless way went Green, still working hard for Thomas; his face was long, his purse was lean, despite his selfish promise. For, though he swatted left and right whenever the rumor seized him, and though he started many a fight to get whatever pleased him, he still had not accomplished much toward gaining fame and power, but lived within a humble hutch as at his starting hour. While through the years kind Sammy Smith had scattered cheer with ardor, and gladdened all his kin and kith, though empty was their larder He brightened every passing day, though divers ills were waiting, he shooed folks' troubles all away and sent their cares gyrating. To Sammy Smith he paid scant heed, and yet his wealth kept growing; his fortune flourished like a weed that needs no plow nor hoeing. When selfish chappies dig away to gain their own wants only they'll likely end some dismal day, forgotten, poor and lonely.

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1922, by Helen Rowland

ALAS, poor Woman! She can please some of the men most of the time, and most of the men some of the time; but no mortal woman ever could please ALL of the men any of the time, nor ANY man all of the time.

A man's love has to be repeatedly wound up, like a clock; but once a woman's heart gets started, it is supposed to go on working, automatically, forever, no matter how many shocks it receives

To be a successful wife, a woman has to spend half her time stimulating a man's vanity and the other half reducing the fever, so that it won't go to his head and make him dizzy.

Widows are so fascinating, because they are impressionable If a widow has had a good, devoted husband, she thinks that all other men are like him; if she hadn't, she fondly believed that all the others are "different."

A wife is just the little "buffer" between a man and all the annoyances and discomforts of life—the servants, the family, the tradesmen, the children, the flies -and the consequences of his own follies.

Nothing so ages a woman as sitting meekly beside the smoldering ashes of love and waiting for the last spark to die out; but a man is aware that success in love as in cooking consists in knowing when to put out the fire and build a new one.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Seeing Other Friends

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My sweetheart is out of town on business, and forbids me to see any boy friends while he's away Do you think that's right? I'm eighteen and lonely. I think he should trust me and let me keep my friends, as they always call at the house.

ANNE

Is it worth while to hurt your sweetheart for the sake of an occasional evening's entertainment? True, he is jealous and has no right to "forbid" you to do as you wish, but I've an idea that if you didn't lay so much stress on doing what he asks you not to he'd learn to be more generous and also to have more faith

RIGHT FOOD FOR A CHILD

By Loretto C. Lynch

AN anemic looking little child came into a busy noon day restaurant the other day accompanied by its mother, whose general appearance indicated that she belonged to the city's poorer class.

"What do you want, Mary?" she coaxingly asked the child, who was munching a piece of poisonous looking candy.

"Oh, I just want a cup of coffee and a piece of cake like that man has over there," whined the pathetic looking Mary

"Won't you have an egg and a piece of toast; it's good for you, you know—and you haven't eaten a thing for your breakfast either," continued the mother

But Mary won. She got the cake and the coffee. Perhaps the mother thought she was being kind to little Mary and perhaps she didn't think anything at all about it. But I could not help contrasting the food habits of this child with those of a child of one of America's wealthiest parents.

Every morn ng little Anna was served a well-cooked cereal with lots of cream. Anna had been taught to eat cereal not completely covered with sugar. Anna never had had sugar on her cereal. AND THEREFORE ANNA NEVER LOOKED FOR SUGAR ON HER CEREAL.

sugar quickly satisfies the appetite and therefore takes away the desire for foods needed by the body. Anna had been trained to eat fruit with little or no sugar used in its preparation.

The woman in charge of this wealthy child knew that there are certain elements needed by the body which a highly refined wheat flour bread lacks. And on to Anna bread meant whole wheat or graham bread, with butter

NEW IDEALS FOR GIRLS

STUDYING LIVES OF NOTED WOMEN

By W. A. McKEEVER

TO study b'z personal'ties; to look for big ideas; to acquire a big vision of future usefulness — such is the cheering and lofty purpose to which a high school girls' club of 150 members have set themselves.

As a practical method of approaching this worthy goal, these young truth seekers have decided to consult the lives of Clara Barton, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Mary Lyon, Elizabeth Stanton Cady, Frances E. Willard, Susan B. Anthony, Anna Howard Shaw, Alice Freeman Palmer, Jane Addams and Ida M. Tarbell, are three certain marks of greatness manifested in them all? How did they live and think, and what attention can they pay to trifles?

These questions are to be applied "in order to secure if possible a new basis of inspiration for these girls," as their already inspired young woman instructor has stated the matter.

It is also charged that many women put in all their lives on things as trifling as needles and pins, and that accordingly their daily thoughts scarcely ever rise above such petty things Now, without knowing exactly what they are doing or why, it may be that the 150 high school girls have hit upon an ideal that should be made general for those of their class. We are constantly appealing to boys to aim high, to cultivate a lofty purpose, to strive to become leaders, orators or statesmen

But, as for our girls and their future, the mass of what we hold up before their attention has been needles and pins—mending, patching, sewing, cooking, serving, housekeeping. Master these and be happy at the job, we have admonished them.

That which chiefly made ten noted women famous may we expect the 150 girls to find—was their life-long devotion to generous social ideals. They did not abandon the needles and pins, but they refused to have their minds enslaved by trifling tasks, while they looked for inspiration, for new performances in a world of humanism.

Teach your girl to master the needles and pins as mere passing incidents, while she looks ahead. It is more natural that women should live for men than that men should live for women. Equality of the human family belong equally to each other. Under the new freedom now exercised them, girls and young women are most wisely beginning to aspire to development into complete womanly human beings.

Treat your beauty fairly! No matter how lovely your features are you cannot be truly attractive with a red blotchy oily skin

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

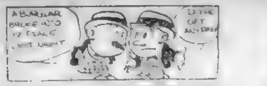

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; remove all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—Advertisement.

TWO DOZEN EVENTS MAKE UP BIG PROGRAM AT K. OF C. GAMES

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Two scratch events, nine handicap events, which include the Joie Ray special mile, and thirteen relay races, comprise the track and field program which will be offered by the Knights of Columbus at its annual indoor meet in Mechanics Building tomorrow night.

This lengthy list, with world or national champions or record holders appearing in almost every number on the program, should promise thrills enough to draw the banner track crowd of the season to the seats and standing area of the hall, and the possibility of additional record-breaking achievements should prompt additional numbers to attempt to ease their way into the packed edifice.

* * *

The scratch events on the program are a forty-yard dash, in which the more prominent entries are Loren Murchison, Jackson Schulz, Bernie Wefers, Jr., Bob McAllister, Ned Gourdin, Billy Commins, Harold Lever, Fritz Carter, Eddie Farrell and Ralph Colson; and the "Casey Mile," for which Mayor Curley has offered a beautiful trophy, and in which Hal Cutbill, Jimmy Connolly, Billy Burke and Mike Devaney appear as the big four.

* * *

In point of general interest, the Joie Ray mile handicap, especially arranged for Joie's assault upon the existing indoor one-mile record, leads the list of handicap events, but the list of record holders and champions who will compete in the 40-yard dash handicap, 600-yard handicap, 1,000-yard handicap, two-mile handicap, one-mile walk handicap, shot put handicap and high jump handicap cause each of those events to loom attractively, and several of their number seem equally or more sure of new marks, as does the special Joie Ray race.

The relay numbers have been selected with rare care, and there should be no let up in excitement during these contests. The [illegible] in their number is the Catholic college relay championship involving the quartets [illegible] Holy Cross, Fordham and Georgetown, and the [illegible] for which they [illegible] is a trophy offered by Cardinal O'Connell.

* * *

But the remaining list of relays include a Harvard - Dartmouth duel; another between Tech and Syracuse; another in which the Massachusetts Aggies and Boston University are the opponents; another in which the Boston K. of C. team meets the New York K. of C. outfit; another between the Harvard freshmen and Tech freshmen; another between the Boston College freshmen and the Holy Cross freshmen; and a high school relay race between the teams of Boston College High and St. James High.

TECH SWIMMERS WILL MEET RUTGERS

Also Have Competition With the Navy in the Midshipmen's Pool on Saturday

Technology's swimming team will engage in two meets, tonight with Rutgers at New Brunswick, N. J., and Saturday with the navy at Annapolis, Md. The Engineers are on their way to the Jersey college.

These also are the last dual meets of the season, for on Saturday, March 18, the New England Intercollegiate championships, which Technology has won for the past two seasons, will be held in Boston.

Undefeated this season, Annapolis men will offer hard competition for [illegible] Rutgers has [illegible] only one meet to the Navy. [illegible] 220-yard swimmer, and [illegible] short distance traveler, are Rutgers' outstanding stars.

There will be no fancy diving event in the Navy meet on account of [illegible] pool.

Technology has a slight edge in tonight's meet, but is hopelessly in the shadow against Annapolis.

HOPES TO MEET DEMPSEY TAKE BIG JUMP

Short Right Hand Uppercut to Jaw Gave Negro Giant the Victory

By Universal Service.

New York, March 3.—Harry Willis' chances of meeting Jack Dempsey for the world heavyweight title took a big jump when the giant negro put Kid Norfolk out in the second round of their scheduled fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

The end came suddenly, being as big a surprise to Wills as it was to the spectators and Norfolk. As the second round opened, Wills sent a stiff left to Norfolk's jaw. Harry then went in close and shot in a few body smashes. Suddenly Norfolk went to the canvas flat on his back. He was counted out.

At the count of ten, Norfolk jumped up and started to rush but the referee stopped him and told him he was out.

Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, was sitting in a box at the Hippodrome with Governor Edwards, of New Jersey, when he heard of Wills' quick victory. Asked if he would fight the winner, Dempsey snapped out:

"I'll meet anybody, white, black or green. It pays to fight."

"Yes, and I'll make you fight in New Jersey," interposed Governor Edwards.

Harvard Honors Only Rowing Coach in "Who's Who"

Dr. R. Heber Howe of Concord, director of rowing at Harvard was honored by his Alma Mater, the university governing boards awarding him a master of science in zoology. The doctor, who has made a study of lichens, is believed to be the only rowing coach in the country who has his name in "Who's Who."

B.C.MEN VICT ORS OVER HARVARD ICE STARS

Boston College has a real claim to the collegiate ice hockey title as the result of the 4 to 2 victory scored by its team over a Harvard array which played under the name of the Crimson Ramblers.

It is true that the Harvard combination lacked the services of Dick Higgins, goal tender, and Captain George Owen of the varsity lineup, but the men who substituted for this pair proved the outstanding stars in the play of the Crimson Ramblers and consequently the team lacked little of the varsity strength.

TY COBB SAYS TIGERS WILL FIGHT HARD

Detroit Manager Not Boastful, but Tells of Plans for Stronger Team

Augusta, Ga., March 3.—The Detroit Tigers are not claiming the American League pennant for 1922, but they will make trouble aplenty for any club in Ban Johnson's organization. So speaks Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the dynamic manager of the Detroit team, in an interview at his home here.

The "Ty-ger" leader was not given over to boastful predictions for the coming season. Rather, he declared, he will concentrate his efforts to strengthen the team in several departments and build it into a formidable machine.

Second base and shortstop are the main difficulties Cobb says he is facing. Last year, he said, opposition clubs punched holes through the keystone position of the infield that lost many a ball game. But he has strong hopes of plugging up these infield defects before the season opens.

"The Tigers should finish fifth or better," the Georgia Peach declared. "We have a very good chance of finishing fourth or possibly third. We are still unsettled at second base and at short.

"Last year 117 errors were made at these positions, but if I can get some fairly good fielding at second and short we will worry any club in the league.

"I look for improvement in my young pitchers, and the club as a whole will be more settled in its defensive play."

The boys are all imbued with the spirit to win, and any club that expects to find the Tigers easy picking is going to be handed a rather unpleasant surprise, according to Cobb.

Last year "Pep" Young and a youngster by the name of Sargent held down the positions of second and short.

Cobb did not state whether he contemplated any trades to strengthen his team, but appeared satisfied with the prospects e fthe club for the coming season.

KILONIS GETS WATERLOO WRESTLING WITH MAMAS

Tommy Metro of the North End defeated Kid Mullay of Worcester in 14m. 30s., with a head scissors and arm lock.

HUNTINGTON HOPES TO WIN BOWDOIN COLLEGE CUP

By FRED C. LANE

Because of the conflict in dates between the State-wide meet and the Bowdoin Interscholastic affair at Brunswick, the Huntington School track team will be unable to compete in both and will live up to their track schedule by taking part in the games in Maine.

The Back Bay school athletes carried off first honors in this meet in 1920 and 1921 and will make a strong bid to capture a third leg [illegible] permanent possession of the Bowdoin shield.

Strong opposition will be encountered from Exeter Academy and [illegible] Academy. Each is sending a strong delegation of runners to these games. The leading high schools of Maine will take a prominent part in track athletics this season and will be out in full force.

* * *

Coach Whiting of Huntington will take ten of his best men to carry home the prize. William Spinney, Larry Simmonds and William Luce will compete in the 40-yard dash. Spinney, Simmonds and Holman will run the 300-yard dash, and Richard MacFarland, Edward Hall, Dave Quirk and Captain Parker will be the Huntington entry for the 600.

* * *

In the 1,000-yard run will be entered Captain Parker, considered one of the best in this State. Dave Quirk will also compete. Gail Robinson, who has done six feet and better for the high jump, will be a sure point winner in that event. He also will take part in the pole vault. Bill Luce, who burst into glory with the shot-put will wear the Huntington colors.

Huntington's chances for [illegible] the third successive time are bright. The team suffered only one defeat this season; that from Andover, which won by a scant four points. Dick MacFarland, in the 600, should [illegible] field home in this event. Time and again he has done the distance in 1:20 4-5 seconds, which is fast time for a schoolboy.

The senior events of the State-wide meet at the East Armory on Saturday appear like record-smashing affairs. Not in years has such an assortment of stars been grouped together for the big races as this year.

* * *

The following is the public school entry:

The following will compete in this event:

Demar, Powder Point; M. L. Snow, Powder Point; T. Varney, Powder Point; P. Degnan, St. John's; Graham, St. John's; McDonald, St. John's; Ferdinand, Dummer; Ingham, Dummer; Madero, Dummer; Taylor, Andover; Wesler, Andover; [illegible] St. James [illegible] Worcester [illegible] Holand, St. James.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

Being a "big man" isn't all fun. It has penalties that ordinary mortals do not suffer.

For example, a man arrested on charges of having swindled rich women out of hundreds of thousands of dollars had fooled them, they claim, by making them believe that he was extremely intimate with certain very prominent Wall Street financiers and that they and he belonged to a club where gambling was carried on for very high stakes.

And immediately these bankers were summoned to court to testify.

You can imagine how enjoying such unmerited notoriety and such inconvenience were to men like George F. Baker, Thomas W. Lamont, Charles H. Sabin, Percy A. Rockefeller and W. Averill Harriman.

* * *

This claiming intimate friendship with financial leaders is an old trick by swindlers. It is often resorted to by the kind of "brokers" who are now being indicted in large numbers. They hoodwink the unwary by pretending that they have received "inside tips" from this, that or the next great capitalist to buy a certain stock or stocks. The victims swallow this alluring bait, hoping to get rich quickly without going through the ordinary, workday struggle to earn money.

* * *

Here, in fact, lies one reason for the bitter unpopularity of many "Wall Street leaders." The cheated unfortunates do not always, or even often find out that the glib talk of the fakers was utterly false. Frequently the fakers tell their victims that Millionaire So-and-So "let them down," "sold out on them," "pulled the plug," "played dirty," and so forth. And this, too, is often swallowed, with the consequence that the losers felt tremendously bitter, not against the fakers, but against the financiers whose names have been used as bait.

* * *

The number of men prominent in the financial world who are flimflammers isn't nearly as large as is generally imagined. The majority—the great majority—are thoroughly honest. If it were not so the whole financial structure would collapse from sheer rottenness.

* * *

After taking this and everything else into consideration, however, the fact does remain, unfortunately, that a too great part of stock market speculation is a case of insiders playing with marked cards. The insiders frequently, because of their official or other connections, receive information before the public receives it, and too many of them do not consider it wrong to wring profits out of the public through possession of this information—at least, if they do consider it wrong they go ahead and do it just the same.

* * *

This is one reason, among others, why I rather think the rules for conducting stock market operations are likely to be rather drastically changed by and by. The public feel they do not get "a fair run for their money." And all too often they don't—not so much because of any condemnable practices by Stock Exchange brokers as because of the family code of ethics by non-members, some of them dominating financial or industrial powers, others of them of less standing.

* * *

From time to time in years past I have urged and urged that the Stock Exchange authorities and high finance to bring about reforms, starting with the conditions under which any new security can be brought before the public for subscription. But, although something has been done, not enough has been done for the protection of the public. Lately the Stock Exchange authorities have been working most earnestly, energetically, and honorably to effect house-cleaning among their own members, and their efforts promise to bear very valuable fruit. Yet I fear that the trouble lies deeper than this, and that until the law makes it criminal to float worthless stocks and bonds, and palm them off on the public under false representations, there will be recurrent outbursts of indignation such as we are now witnessing.

* * *

The danger is that one day the "reformers," moved by revenge rather than by knowledge, will go too far—so far as to cripple the legitimate, the necessary, the indispensable operations of underwriters, of brokers, and of the Stock Exchange itself, without the existence of which modern business and industry could not be carried on without unthinkable chaos.

* * *

Hence, obstruction to clamored-for reform should not be carried too far. It would be wiser to err, at this stage, on the side of radicalism, because what may be viewed, by experts in the business, as radicalism today may tomorrow be discarded by the public and politicians as being altogether too mild. In this connection events in Ireland, in Egypt, in Germany, in Russia, in China and elsewhere may well be called to mind by those who are seeking to insure conservatism.

* * *

The whole problem is a big, serious, vital one, going to the very roots of our existing economic order. Its solution calls for statesmanship for vision, for toleration, for give-and-take—particularly on the part of the "vested interests" for "give."

TREND IS MIXED LATE IN THE SESSION

Profit Taking and Short Covering Are Conflicting Influences in the Afternoon

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

At the close in New York the majority of stocks were showing gains, although the trend in prices had been mixed in the last hour. But final prices were below their highest for the day, although call money dropped to 4 per cent. late in the session. It opened at 4½ per cent. In the foreign exchange market, sterling sagged at $4.39½ on rumors that Lloyd George had resigned. Lire slumped to .0520¼ but German marks rallied from .0037 to .0040. Recent heavy selling of marks is said to have been on Reichsbank account to obtain reparation money.

The market had weak spots. Issues to close with losses included U. S. Steel, Reading, Union Pacific, Bethlehem B, Chandler, Studebaker and Pierce Arrow. Transcontinental Oil recovered all its loss. Motors were the weakest group. Trading was active, transactions approximating 900,000 shares.

Sugars advanced in the second hour, seven selling at new 1922 highs, while Lima Locomotive was an industrial to claim the same distinction. There was urgent buying of Doheny issues to cover short contracts, Mexican Petroleum advancing almost three and Pan American more than a point. Pool operations contributed to the advance of stocks in general. Weakness of Transcontinental Oil was due to liquidation on account of the Kendrick brokerage failure. It was sold in blocks of from 1,000 to 10,000 shares morning transactions in this issue being estimated at a total of 50,000. Manhattan Elevated was a weak stock in the forenoon, falling more than three points. A number of issues reflected profit taking. The wheat market opened with one to two cents gain, while initial cotton prices were mixed as to changes.

ADVANCED AT ONCE.

The market opened with an advance, and early gains ranged from fractions to about four points. Although the passing of the preferred Sloss Sheffield dividend was something of a shock to recent confidence in steel issues, based on increased activity at their plants, a number of issues in this group moved up. Other prominent stocks in the rise were found among rails, coppers and motors. Oils and sugars were irregular as to price changes. Strength was retained by the list in general during the first hour, although motors developed a sagging tendency. Highs for 1922 were reached by Beet Sugar, Chandler, Consolidated Gas, Remington Typewriter and Continental Can, while Computing and Tabulating and Hartman climbed to their highest prices since 1920. Transcontinental Oil was a weak stock and sold at its lowest for this year to date. Gains of a point or more were many before mid-morning, while Computing and Tabulating advanced nearly three and Continental Can and American Snuff more than three. Liberty bonds advanced a few cents.

LESS FEAR OF BONUS.

Wall Street is less afraid of the bonus, believing that no act will be put through Congress now which will subject the U. S. Treasury to much strain for a while. The money situation has not become as easy with the advent of March as was expected. The Federal Reserve ratio this week is 76.1, against 75.1 a week ago, the New York figure being 84.1 against 87.1, and that of Boston 70.4 against 72.1. Borrowing by Eastern banks has increased and thus accounts to some extent for the change. There is no talk at present of a reduction of the discount rate and of a big money surplus. The recent rise in stocks is said by some observers to be due to the oversold condition of the market and the covering difficulties of those who have become uncomfortably committed to the short side. There was a good borrowing demand for stocks in the loan market yesterday, American Sugar preferred loaned at 1-32 premium.

SUMMER WILL NOT BE DULL, SAYS EVANS

Revival in Rail Stocks One Indication of Liveliness in the Right Way

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, March 3.—It is a little early to be complaining of the dullness of the Summer of 1922, but that is what one hears from many people, and not merely those who indulge in arbitrary prophesy but who lay out the future with the surveying instruments of the present.

The dominant fact in the minds of these people is an increasing superabundance of capital, not in large masses but scattered about among individuals.

It is a variety of pleasures that we get in this life and at the close of 1921 vast numbers of individuals were indulging in the joy of losing money, or at least "establishing" a loss by selling and buying back, for by so much was their income tax diminished. This satisfaction still flutters in the hearts of stockholders, but the merchant's pain of having money on hand that he knows not what to do with is something calling for the sympathy of bystanders.

SOLACE IN MARKET.

The cause of this excess is the slackness of business, which has not been big enough to take up the funds left over from the liquidation of 1921. Trade has not yet reached a development sufficient to absorb the normal increase of movable wealth in the United States.

Solace is found in the bond and stock markets, as the gambler placates his nervous system by a hand at poker. This buying is a large element in the making of quotations. Indeed the effect on prices from an increase in the supply of movable capital is finding as good an illustration now as we have ever seen in the United States.

Most of these buyers will fare well unless the business revival hastens its coming and calls on them for capital in their own business, for the prospects of many of the companies whose stocks are commonly traded in are excellent for a period of two or three years.

The turn has come, but it must be remembered that at a given point at a given time and in a given line of trade there are still two tides, an ebb and a flood. This trade has one trick that the Atlantic Ocean and its associates cannot perform. The tide of the grain market has been strongly in favor of that class of goods, but the exporter of meats has every reason to complain of an ebb.

Europe is not eating our fats and leans with the same vigor as formerly. Offerings of bills in this market by the packers are still meager, which in part accounts for the recent comparatively high prices.

THEY BUY RAILS.

It is interesting to see that a large percentage of this money has gone into railroad stocks, which thus far have treated their purchasers well.

There is still a large percentage of persons, who learning of the greatness of our railroads at their father's knee, have an ingrained respect for their securities, and when they buy anything they buy rails. The greatest change in the history of these properties that has ever occurred, that is the increased participation of the Federal government in their affairs, is a matter which they ignore and of which they refuse to be afraid. The fact that the roads are earning little over 3 per cent on their appraised value counts for nothing though the industrials yield 6 to 10 per cent. They are railroads, and that is enough.

"MISERY PACIFIC" UP.

In glancing over the list one naturally inquires what relation to the future of the roads and the helpfulness, or unhelpfulness, of the government has a stock, such as St. Paul, which earns nothing. One sees many others in somewhat the same category such as "Misery Pacific" which is sharply up today.

Industrial stocks are the modern thing and the thing that has yielded the handsomest returns to buyers in recent years. Witness United States Steel, once selling at $9 per share and later disporting itself far above par.

The important thing for the country is not the rise in the prices of any of the issues, but the tremendous extent to which the people have participated in furnishing capital to these concerns. The English used to look aghast at us for confining our investment and speculation to the railroads, but now they can see the billions that we have handed the industrial corporations and the handsome results following therefrom. These, nearly all, have now taken a new start and, while some of them still will cease to pay dividends, in the main the tide will be in their favor.

It is not worth while, under these conditions, for one to watch for a dull Summer to blink at him. It will be dull in part, but much livelier in the right way than that of last year.

COPPERS FIRM ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Local Market Shows Strength; Curb Leaders Are Quiet on the Advance

Strength characterized the Boston list all the morning, gains being general at the start and later. Trading was of fair breadth and volume. Coppers were steady and had an upward trend. It is reported that foreign demand is increasing. With foreign exchange near normal there should be a big market for red metal in Europe. Domestic consumers continue to buy on the basis of immediate needs. There was negligible business in New England rails. Packing issues showed small changes, but were up as a class. Island Creek and International Cement sold at new highs for the year, the first-named gaining 3⅝. American Woolen advanced 2⅛. Point or more gains were made by Ahmeek, Seneca, New England Telephone, Galveston Electric and Atlantic Gulf. John T. Connor advanced a fraction. Massachusetts Gas declined two points.

The tone was as firm in the afternoon as in the morning. American Woolen preferred and American Sugar preferred sold at their highest for more than a year, the latter reaching par on one transaction. Calumet & Arizona recovered its dividend on the first sale and lost it on the next. Atlas Tack advanced 2⅝. Atlantic Gulf 2¼ and Sugar preferred 2. Point or more gains were shown in the last hour by United Fruit, U. S. Smelting and Allouez. Massachusetts Gas increased its loss by another point.

CURB WAS STRONG.

The Curb was quiet and strong during the forenoon. Leaders were Bagdad, Boston & Montana and Mutual. By noon Boston & Montana was up 1 cent at 33 cents, Eureka 1 cent at 23 cents, Mutual 3 cents at 37 cents, Boston Ely 1 cent at 64 cents, Gray Top 1 cent at 22 cents, Daddy 1 cent at 5 cents and Chief ⅛ at 3⅛. Among declines were Three Metals, 1 cent at 66 cents and Verde Mines 1 cent at 23 cents. Bagdad had lost an opening gain of a cent.

DEPORTED ONCE, SMUGGLES WAY BACK AGAIN

Rumanian Held at Burlington, Vt., After Swimming Ashore at Montreal

Burlington, Vt., March 3.—John Grunzweig, an alleged Anarchist, who was ordered deported two years ago and who got back to the United States as a stowaway in a ship bound from Greece to Montreal, is awaiting trial here in United States Court.

Grunzweig avoided immigration inspectors at Montreal by jumping overboard and swimming ashore in the St. Lawrence River. He entered the United States from Canada by riding the bumpers on a train into St. Albans. Grunzweig is a native of Rumania and went to that country when deported, but had trouble with the government and went to Greece.

After his arrival at St. Albans he went to Waterbury, Vt., by the bumper system and there wrote his father in Tonawanda, N. Y. This led to his arrest.

He was indicted at a session of the Grand Jury in New York State, but it could not be proven that he entered through that State. He then was indicted in New Hampshire, where the government had the same experience in proving the case against him.

The Federal authorities now have secured more evidence and will prosecute him here.

FOREIGN LOANS AROUSE THE STATE DEPT.

Wants Banking Interests to Consult It Before Undertaking Such Flotations

Washington, March 3.—Aroused over the great number of foreign bonds that are being dumped into the American market, the Department of State today issued a lengthy statement, again requesting American banking and investment interests to consult the State Department with regard to such flotations. The official statement reads:

"The flotation of foreign bond issues in American markets is assuming an increasing importance and on account of the bearing of such operations upon the proper conduct of affairs it is hoped that American concerns that contemplate making foreign loans will refer to the State Department.

"American concerns that wish to ascertain the attitude of the Department regarding any projected loan should request the Secretary of State in writing for an expression of the Department's views. The Department will then give the matter consideration and, in the light of information in its possession, endeavor to say whether objections to the loan in question does or does not exist, but it should be carefully noted that the absence of a statement of the Department, even though the Department may have been fully informed, does not indicate either acquiescence or objection. The Department will reply as promptly as possible to such inquiries.

"The Department believes that owing to the possible national interest involved it should have the opportunity of saying to the underwriters concerned, should it be considered advisable to do so, that there is or is not objection to any particular issue."

RAILS BLOCKED ON 2 DIVISIONS BY MISHAPS

B. & M. Eastern and Western Sections Near Kennebunk, Me., Tied Up

West Kennebunk, Me., March 3.—The Boston & Maine Railroad had a series of derailments today in this section which blocked both of its divisions between Boston and Portland, for several hours. No one was injured.

Derailment of a freight train at Wells blocked the single track between Wells and Kennebunk, on the Western Division and caused the morning trains from New York, Boston and Portland to be diverted to the Eastern Division.

During this movement the engines of a passenger train, known as the newspaper train, from Boston, and of a special passenger train were derailed at McIntire's Cut between Kennebunk and Biddeford, blocking the Eastern Division.

REED PROTESTS HURRIED VOTE ON TREATIES

Senator Says Action Is Asked Before Public Can Learn Import of Pacts

By SENATOR JAMES A. REED, United States Senator from Missouri.

Written for Cosmopolitan News Service. (Copyright, 1922.)

Washington, March 3.—It is impossible at this moment to predict the result in the treaty fight. Treaties are being forced on for action and every effort is made to secure their ratification before the public can be generally advised as to their import.

The so-called Yap treaty has already been ratified. The public understands that it involves no more than certain telegraphic rights on the small island of Yap. But the fact is, it confirms Japan in its control in all the islands taken from Germany lying in the north Pacific. It places a Japanese base of operations 2,000 miles nearer our coast than before the European war. It gives to Japan two belts of island lying between the Hawaiian Islands and the Philippines.

BY WHAT VOTE?

The so-called four-power pact as written is, in effect at least, a defensive, if not an offensive alliance. It provides that all disputes between the parties shall be settled by conference. How shall these disputes be settled, by unanimous vote or by majority vote?

If the latter what might be the fate of the United States in a tribunal if France and England had the deciding vote? We already know that England has for many years had a secret alliance with Japan and we are creditably informed that the same condition exists between France and Japan.

HARD TO CONFINE.

The treaty by its terms is confined to the islands of the Pacific, but a moment's thought will show that such an agreement in its operation cannot be confined in any particular treaty. Wars are not held within geographical lines. The killing of a single man in Bosnia was the spark which lighted the World War and although we were over 3,000 miles distant and not at all concerned in the controversy we were drawn into it.

One of the Japanese possessions which we are bound by this treaty to protect is the Island of Sakhalin, one-half of which Japan holds. It commands Vladivostok. It may be attacked by Russia some day.

PRUNE EATERS ON INCREASE IN AMERICA

Consumption Advanced 75 P.C. Within the Last Four Years

National Prune Week, which began last Monday and ends tomorrow night, has served to emphasize to the American people the tremendous development which this California industry has undergone in the last few years.

Members of the California Prune & Apricot Growers, Inc., the State-wide growers' non-profit selling association, under whose auspices National Prune Week has been held, took the packing and distributing of the California prune crops into their own hands four years ago.

BUILD UP INDUSTRY.

From an industry which was slipping backwards, the growers have built it up through co-operative marketing to a point where it is predicted that the annual California prune crop will total 850,000,000 pounds or more within five years with total sales amounting to six or seven times what they were a few years ago.

The American consumption of California prunes has been increased from 50 to 75 per cent. within the last four years almost entirely due to the advertising and sales effort put forth by this growers' organization.

War conditions are mainly responsible for the herculean efforts made by the growers which have resulted in boosting the American demand for California prunes to its present high level.

AMERICAN DEMAND HEAVY.

Before the war Germany was counted on to take millions of pounds of California prunes every year. War embargoes cut off this market and the California growers were forced to turn to the domestic market to find an outlet for their product.

During the last nine months Germany has again entered the market as a buyer of California prunes, but has confined her orders almost entirely to small sized fruit which can be purchased for a very low price.

The American demand, however, is buying nearly all the good quality California prunes and, according to predictions made by large wholesale food distributors of the United States, the American demand will grow by leaps and bounds within the next few years.

AS HARMONY SAW THE ANNUAL BANQUET

WOOL MEN LAY BUSINESS ASIDE

Quips and Skits Form Bulk of Program at Tenth Annual Banquet

More than a thousand men attended the tenth annual banquet of the Boston Wool Trade Association at the Copley-Plaza, and laughed at the quips and skits which formed the bulk of the program.

Jacob F. Brown, founder of the organization, one of the speakers, congratulated the banqueters on "getting away from the shop talk of other banquets."

Alfred L. Aiken, president of the National Shawmut Bank, another speaker, compared the wool men of today with the merchants who made Boston's commerce great a hundred years ago.

Walter J. Meadows, vice-president of the association, presided in the absence of President Harold S. Edwards, who is in the West. William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, was kept away by a slight attack of ill health.

No representative of the National Wool Growers attended the banquet.

W. T. LeTour of the traffic department of the Boston & Maine Railroad discussed traffic problems, and said that the 40 per cent. cut in tariffs introduced some time ago in the hope of getting back some of the business loss to motor trucks had failed so far in its purpose.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS

WHEN an author writes a story nowadays he can't be certain where it will end up. The stage, screen and publishing business are becoming more and more interchangeable. A plot may start out as a novel, or even a short story, be transferred to a footlight attraction after publication, and then become a celluloid success.

That is what happened to Fannie Hurst's short story, "Back Pay," for example. Now word come that "East Is West," the William Harris stage piece by Samuel Shipman, in which Fay Bainter scored for so many months, has been bought by Joseph Schenck, for the express purpose of showing what Constance Talmadge can do with a part that does not call less for farcical and comedy treatment than emotional work.

Another stage favorite, but of less recent vintage, that will be revived for posterity is "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," as well as "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," which have been bought for filming by Warner Brothers. This is doubtless in view of the fact that "Why Girls Leave Home" proved such a bonanza to them.

Warner Brothers have decided that the best way to garner in profits from the motion picture producing field is to give the public stories it knows fairly well. For the most part they have gone in, see above, for the more lurid type story; thereby showing that their business ability has in no way been submerged by a love for art. On the other hand, they are the lucky purchasers of Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street," a story that more than one big producer has been angling for. Those who have read the book, and book sellers assure us that their name is legion, will see the picture, naturally. Those who have not read the book, and there are some of these, will see the picture to save the trouble of reading the book. And there you are.

Another piece of fiction bought up by this firm is Charles Norris' "Brass," the dissertation on marriage as an institution that has brought forth tumultuous arguments.

AND NOW—"FOOLISH WIVES!"

AN announcement that gives one a chance for wondering is that made by the Universal concern, regarding their million dollar and nineteen-months-in-the-making production, "Foolish Wives," booked for the Park Theatre next week. This story by Eric Von Stroheim is being written—again by him—in book form.

Not only that, but it is said that Eugene Walters, noted for his success as a playwright, is making plans to rewrite the story into stage continuity, and hopes to make Broadway sit up and gasp. As the hero of a story I read a short time ago, unfortunately I don't recall the title, said, "It sounds to me!"

MAJOR CAMPBELL, PRODUCER.

THOSE who have liked the Realart productions featuring Bebe Daniels and Wanda Hawley and Constance Binney will have a chance to see more films put on in the same way. Major Maurice Campbell, who has been responsible for the direction of the films of these players, has completed arrangements to become an independent producer. He is the husband of Henrietta Crosman, the actress, and has a number of years' experience back of the footlights.

TYRONE POWER SIGNS.

TYRONE POWER is and has been for some years one of the finest actors on the American screen. That he has not long been acclaimed as such is one of the vagaries of the motion picture game. It may have been due to poor stories. For some reason he has just missed being recognized.

Now we hear that he has signed up to play the leading role in a Thomas H. Ince production, "Finding Home." Ince does not pick his types carelessly. If he has a lead that fits Powers, then Tyrone Powers will surely make his mark—as far as the public is concerned. Producers have long realized his ability.

HOLLYWOOD ROMANCE AGAIN.

MORE matrimonial news comes from California. This time it concerns Edward M. Kimball, who has appeared in a number of Robertson-Cole films and who has won equal fame as being the father of Clara Kimball Young. Mr. Young was married last week to Mrs. Alyse Hunt Whitaker, who is in Los Angeles writing scenarios for the screen. She was formerly a magazine writer.

CAMERA CLICKS.

FRANK MAYO and his wife, Dagmar Godowsky, are on their way West to take up work on Mr. Mayo's next feature for Universal. This call from Mr. Laemmle came very suddenly and broke up their plans for personal appearances through the East. . . . William DeMille's next production, following "Bought and Paid For," will be adapted from Rachel Crothers' comedy, "Nice People," in which Francine Larrimor appeared on Broadway. Bebe Daniels, Wanda Hawley and Wallace Reid will have the leads. . . . J. Searle Dawley is "shooting" scenes on a burlesque of the C. B. DeMille feature based on Schnitzler's dramatic sketches. Dawley calls his "The Affair That Annie Told." . . . Nazimova is planning to let Hollywood run on by itself in about a week and will come East for a six weeks' visit to her home in Port Chester, N. Y. . . . Universal is going to make a boy scout serial. . . . Mary Astor, who has appeared in Triart productions of famous paintings, will be seen in the lead with Eugene O'Brien in "John Smith," his next feature.

YARD ROOMS ALLOTTED TO HARVARD '23 MEN

Allotments of yard rooms for the class of 1923 at Harvard were made with all but thirty of 354 who made application handled successfully. The committee in charge will endeavor to look after those who failed to draw rooms, and to make this possible one entry in Matthews Hall will be partially reserved for seniors. Among the groups of applicants were "Muggins' Love Nest," "William J. Bryan," "Kidney Beans," "Galloping Cubes," "Sons of Venus," "Black and Tans." The assignments were distributed as follows: Grays, 61; Hollis, 40; Holworthy, 49; Stoughton, 45, and Thayer, 129.

YOUTHFUL BANDITS SENT TO REFORMATORY

Fall River, March 3.—Thomas Garrity and William Kenny, youthful holdup men, who attacked and robbed nineteen-year-old Alfred Machado, were sentenced to the Massachusetts Reformatory by Judge Hanify in District Court. Garrity's sentence was suspended for one year, while Kenny appealed and furnished surety in the sum of $500. Machado was collecting rents for his father and he had received $40 when he was dragged to a cellarway, held by one of the young men, and robbed by the other.

TSIANINA SINGS QUAINT INDIAN MELODIES

Princess in Enjoyable Recital With Charles W. Cadman in Jordan Hall

At Jordan Hall last night, for the benefit of Goucher College of Baltimore, Md., one of the most thoroughly enjoyable concerts of this season was given by Princess Tsianina and Charles Wakefield Cadman. A good house was on hand, and if it did not entirely fill the hall, it cannot be gainsaid that what it lacked in volume it surely made up in enthusiasm.

The program was arranged in groups of songs for the princess, with Mr. Cadman at the piano, followed by piano solos by Mr. Cadman, of which the greater part were his own compositions. They were exceptionally interesting, and practically every group called for at least one encore. In fact, before the evening was concluded, just about as many encores were added as the original length of the program.

Mr. Cadman made an informal little chat about the Indian music, its rhythm, its instruments and its singers. It was illuminating because it was brief and to the point.

So popular was the "Canoe Song" from "Shanewis," the Indian opera, by Mr. Cadman, that the audience insisted that the princess sing it three times. It will bear with interest many more hearings than it had last night.

LEVERONI HEADS PUBLIC CELEBRATION ASSN.

At the annual meeting of the members of the Public Celebration Association the following officers were elected: President, Frank Leveroni; vice-presidents, John B. Archibald, Frank Chouteau Brown; treasurer, Louis Watson; secretary, E. B. Mero; executive committee, the officers and Charles T. Cahill, William H. Cuddy, William Carroll Hill and James H. Phelan.

The director of public celebrations, J. Philip O'Connell, discussed with the members the plans which have been sanctioned by Mayor Curley for developing popular and constructive holiday celebrations. The Hypocrisy of British Diplomacy

Five Reservations in Offer of Self-Government to Egypt Makes Withdrawal of Protectorate a Farce

When old imperial Germany did wrong, she admitted it and pleaded the excuse of imperious necessity. Thus when she passed through Belgium to strike at France, her Chancellor publicly admitted that it was wrong, but said that it was necessary and that necessity was the first law of nature.

When the British do wrong they deny that it is wrong. They misrepresent it; they give it euphonious names and seek by a cloud of propaganda and falsehoods to make that seem right which is plainly wrong. It is the difference between a frank wrongdoer and a hypocrite.

Thus the British Premier, Lloyd George, proclaimed to the world that the British protectorate over Egypt had been withdrawn and that the people of Egypt were to order their own affairs. A few preliminary questions, however, elicited the fact that the British withdrawal of its protectorate was not to be at once, but when there was an Egyptian government capable of carrying out some little reservations which the British propose to make concerning their withdrawal. The fact that the British propose to wait until such a government is organized by the Egyptian people has about as much significance as the promise which the British made in 1880, that they had occupied Egypt only to restore order and they would withdraw as soon as order had been restored, and within twenty years in any event, and the further British promise, made during the late war, that this old promise so often broken would be kept as soon as the war was over.

But suppose that the people of Egypt should organize a government which even the British are willing to admit is capable of carrying out these little reservations which the British have made to their alleged withdrawal from Egypt. It then becomes important to know what these little reservations are.

They are as follows:

First—Security of the communications of the British Empire in Egypt.

Second—Defence of Egypt against all foreign aggression or interference, direct or indirect.

Third—Protection of the foreign interests of Egypt.

Fourth—An agreement with the Egyptian Government in a spirit of mutual accommodation whenever a favorable opportunity arises for the conclusion of such an agreement. "But until such an agreement satisfactory to ourselves and to the Egyptian Government has been concluded, the status quo will remain intact," says the declaration.

Fifth—The protection by the British of minorities in Egypt.

No government pretending to have absolute control over another people ever could exercise more authority over that people than the British propose to continue to exercise over the people of Egypt under these little reservations. The abandonment of the British protectorate over Egypt, but the maintenance of these five powers over the Egyptian people, makes the pretense that anything new or better in the nature of self-determination has been offered by the British Government to the people of Egypt a hollow farce, a ghastly mockery, exceeded only by the pretense that the British ever intend to give the people of India any respectable modicum of self-government.

There is nothing more nauseating in the world than British hypocrisy unless it is Japanese, and Japanese diplomacy is built on British lines with Great Britain as the great example.

Beware of Propaganda in the News From India

England Would Have the World Believe That the Hatred of the People Is Directed to All Europeans

In reading the news of India, which is coming fast and increasing in interest, we must bear in mind that it comes from British sources and is tainted with British propaganda.

A fair example of the propaganda character of the news may be appreciated by understanding that when these news dispatches speak of the killing of a "European" or the danger to a "European," the British propaganda wants you to understand that it is a "European," not an Englishman, and that the hatred of the people of India is running against "Europeans" generally, not Englishmen.

Now, the truth is that the hatred of the people of India is exclusively directed against the people of England, and that a Frenchman, a German, an Italian, an Irishman, or any other European is just as safe in India, if the people of India know that he is not an Englishman, as he is in his own country. It is the English oppressor that the Indian people are rising against. But the English want us to believe that it is a general uprising of some strange barbarians against civilized races.

Therefore, when you read the news of India, read it thoughtfully and take nothing for granted, except that 315,000,000 people who have given the world splendid contributions from their culture and who, when they were conquered through an insane pacifism, enjoyed a higher general education than the English, cannot be held down against a determined effort on their part to rid themselves of their oppressors.

More Babies for Japan

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Mrs. Sanger, who teaches birth control, for keeping down excess population, limiting poor families, and improving babies in general, thought she would go to Japan and tell them about it there.

She planned without knowledge of Japanese plans and ambitions. Her passport is refused and Japan will not admit her, unless she promises to make no birth control speech.

The Japanese tell you they must have more land, preferably on our side of the Pacific because they lack room for their people at home.

But she would not thank you to cut down or limit her population. It is her conviction—entirely praiseworthy—that she surpasses other races, and is destined to be the next great world empire.

We know that she is mistaken, and exaggerates her achievements in besting China and Russia, but SHE does not know it. And eventually, she will compel the westerh world to teach her.

The next great war, may it be the last, will be a war with the east. Asia has got to learn, again, that the west is ours. One result of our Washington conference has been to disgust China and turn her against the United States, the only real friend she had among big nations. That suits Japan's plans. For if Japan comes marching west, she will want China's masses behind her.

If born today you have an ingenious inventive mind and the even rarer quality of being capable of putting it to a practical use.

You are interested in metals and mechanics, and if the opportunity presents itself you should by all means dedicate your life to work of mechanical nature.

Here lies your greatest fulfillment and you will never reach your greatest development in any other pursuit.

Your memory is generally good, but far better in its record of things seen than in those heard. Waste no time in any occupation in which you might have to repeat orders in messages; it would cause you a great deal of nervous strain.

You are erratic and restless in disposition, with a tendency to wander out of the beaten track and visit strange unknown places.

You are furthermore in the habit of treating your recreations as your business and constantly weighing and measuring. In the midst of an intensely exciting movie, for instance, you will find your mind constantly working estimating the number of people in the house.

You should avoid travel and changes today.

A happy and fruitful year awaits you. One in which you will enjoy more and laugh more than you have for many years.

Children born today will be erratic, but on the other hand will always be able to take care of themselves.

Famous persons born today:

W. B. de las Casas, lawyer.

Edwin Ginn Merritt, head of De Merritte School.

Alexander Graham Bell, telephone inventor.

George M. Pullman, inventor of Pullman cars.

Joseph Wharton, metallurgist.

Francis Ogden, inventor.

Attaining Wealth May Mar the Bliss of Life

"OH, YES," said the rich woman, "we were very poor in those days.

"We hadn't been married long and my husband had only a small salary and I was ill, and very weak—and I suffered a great deal of pain.

"I didn't walk for over a year, you know—I couldn't even get up out of my chair without almost intolerable agony.

"And the baby was little, and she was a rascal—poor, little thing! She wasn't very well, either, and she cried—and in the night, sometimes, my husband was so tired he couldn't waken. And I would creep out of bed and crawl on my hands and knees to the baby's crib and look after her. And I had to have a cook and we couldn't afford it.

"I shall never forget one of the first days I was able to be on my crutches. It was Spring, early in April, and the sunshine had melted the snow and the lilac buds were swelling and the air was sweet with the promise of Summer, and I wanted to cry—I was so happy.

Was It Possible?

"My crutches were like wings. But when I came home, the cook we had somehow managed to get had a friend in the kitchen, and she was broiling chops and baked potatoes for a luncheon for herself and the friend.

"It was all I could do to keep from crying.

"Chops and baked potatoes—for luncheon—and I had planned them for dinner—and I had already owed the butcher a bill that was keeping me awake nights. And the clothes I tried to make for the baby. I cried over them—they'd make me laugh now. And the letters I wrote home without a word of poverty or my pain and illness. And how I hated to hear a knock at the back door—when my husband was home.

"Suppose it should be the butcher—with his bill—and my husband thought I had paid cash for everything. And he was trying so hard, poor man!"

Could it all be true? Was it possible that the Rich Woman had ever been so poor and so ill, and so worried and so altogether wretched?

She Is Poor Indeed

"How in the world did you ever stand it?" we asked almost in a chorus.

"Oh," said the Rich Woman—and she laughed a tremulous laughter that was a little sadder than any tears. "I stood it because I was so happy."

And we who know of her rich husband's careless cruelty and cold indifference did not dare to meet her eyes, for fear that we should show that we knew what she meant.

She was happy, then, the Rich Woman—when she was very, very poor—happier than she will ever be again.

ARE YOU PRACTICING SECRET DIPLOMACY?

Are you one of those persons who think it possible to keep everyone good natured by seeming to acquiesce with every plan set before you, but count on your ability to get out gracefully when it comes to doing what you intend not to do?

You may be able to carry on a two-faced attitude for a time, but be sure someone is going to find you out and hunt you down.

Not everyone will be so dense that they will not recognize your fencing for time when there is a decision to be made.

Not everyone is willing to be put off time after time while you promise to "look into the matter."

Why not come out in a perfect, straightforward way and state your case, if you are opposed to a certain course?

Even your enemies have more respect for you if you are frank and honest.

There is too much "secret diplomacy" going on, and the world today is sick at heart and tired and disgusted with everything of that sort.

Not only nations, but many individuals still believe that they can carry on that way, but suspicion is rending the peace which might be.

Factory Girls' Wine Parties

LONDON, March 3.—The Temperance Societies of England are gathering their forces for a campaign against excessive drinking among factory girls. According to Miss Newton, the organizing secretary of the British Women's Temperance Association, wine parties among these girls are a regular feature of their lives, and the situation is becoming the despair of social workers and employers alike.

Girls in the "Midlands" are as bad as those in London in their weakness for strong drink, so temperance workers throughout the country are combining to combat the evil.

Wine feasts and sly drinking are increasing both in London and the provinces; though the girls taking part in them seldom divulge where the parties are held.

These gatherings are generally called birthday parties, and each one present contributes her share. Speaking on the subject, Miss Newton said:

"The immediate consequence of these feast parties is dreadful and the result on future generations will be appalling.

"I hardly know how to account for this outbreak of intemperance on the part of girls unless it is that since the war they have become impatient of all restraint and that they are not now so closely looked after as they were during the war. They can buy whatever wine and spirit they desire, and the desire of some of them is limited only by the depth of their purpose.

In the East End of London the public houses are filled with girls, especially on a Saturday night. There is a perpetual stream of them passing in and out of drinking saloons, and most of them appear to be respectable girls of the working and middle classes."

HE FOUND OUT

Excited little man rushed up to a bellhop at a big hotel. "Hey, boy," he said. "Run up to my room and see if my umbrella is there. Hurry up—I've only got five minutes to catch the train."

Three minutes later the boy came tripping back. "Yes, sir," said. "It's there all right."

REVOLUTION WILL BRING U. S. OF INDIA

By Taraknath Das,

International Secretary, Friends of Freedom for India.

IN spite of most brutal form of repression and practical application of martial law all over India, the non-co-operation movement in India is moving towards a virtual revolution. For a time it was indicated, through the news received from India, that the Indian people, as if in despair, would take violent revolutionary tactics and Gandhi would give up his leadership.

This came to light just as soon as the program of general civil disobedience became effective. But Gandhi is a moderate; he is the leader of the Centre party of India and non-violence is religion to him, and he has so far succeeded to have the non-violent program prevail, although violence has become more general as the outcome of repression.

Gandhi, like a moderate, agreed to have a round table conference with the British government with certain conditions—right of free speech, freedom of the press and assembly must be upheld and all persons under arrest because of their adherence to non-violent non-co-operation program be released.

Proposal Refused

Gandhi also made it clear "when India had full Swaraj she would certainly not permit a single soldier to leave India to coerce the brave Egyptians into submission to a foreign yoke." This proposal was refused by the British government and yet Gandhi, to see that the movement went on peacefully, put off the application of the program of the general civil disobedience for a time. But the masses, particularly peasants, did not like the idea that the program of non-payment of taxes be postponed, and they in various parts of India enforced the program by refusing to pay taxes. A London dispatch, February 26, indicates the gravity of the situation:

"A significant agrarian movement is progressing in the Calcutta region (all of Bengal). The tenants have organized, the tax collectors are being intimidated or boycotted and the crops are being destroyed."

It is evident that because of the refusal of the payment of taxes the British agents have begun to destroy crops to inflame the country. Gandhi himself, although a moderate, had to submit to the demands of the All-India Congress Committee meeting, held in Delhi a week ago, that no item of the non-co-operation program be given up. In Young India of January 12, Gandhi, in an article, "Next is Gunpowder," charges the government with legalized lawlessness and pillage by giving instances where the police entered the houses of private citizens and took away ornaments from the women and assaulted people at large. Gandhi is appealing for the fiercest kind of individual civil disobedience, and says:

Civil Disobedience

"The case is complete for the fiercest civil disobedience of the most aggressive type with the preservation of non-violence on our side. We must not wait for gunpowder to be used upon the helpless people, nor can we put an undue strain upon the people's patience by merely remaining on the defensive and letting the government agents pillage and plunder our homes. We must draw the gunpowder on our own heads and, too, at the earliest possible opportunity."

The situation is leading up to a crisis, as the Indian soldiers, particularly the Sikhs, have begun to give up their support to the British government by resigning from the Indian army. Britain is ready to make concessions to Indian moderates to rally them for a civil war in India, and we have documentary evidence of the plan. But this will not be fruitful, because the Republicans of India will not be satisfied without having a United States of India, and this is bound to come in course of the struggle for independence.

To the Editor

Reckless Children

Editor Boston American:

It is fortunate for the motorist, and even more so for those worthies themselves, that the so-called "jay walker" is about to be restrained. A more delicate, but quite as serious, a matter is that of some children. That children should receive every consideration is not to be questioned. One of the duties of all rowmpus is to help children to learn to look out for their own safety and for the comfort and happiness of others.

Occasionally a child will deliberately stand in the path of an advancing car, paying no further heed to the horn than to hold his position more firmly and glare at the driver. If the day is bright, the road smooth, the coast clear, the driver sober and alert, the child is likely to escape injury, but he is clearly exceeding his prerogative. Lacking any one of the above mentioned conditions—well, I wonder more children are not killed.

THE BIGGEST AND BEST WORK OF AMERICA

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

TALENT-SAVING stations on the shores of poverty is what a grandiloquent social worker once picturesquely called the social settlements which are maintained in the poorer quarters of our larger cities.

Ideally, there should be no poor quarters. Certainly, there should be no slums. But actually they do exist in every sizable city.

They represent unequality of opportunity and economic injustice, rather than thriftlessness and shiftlessness—as many who are economically on top blandly assert.

It is ridiculously irresponsible and fundamentally cynical to play with the problem of poverty by dismissing it with such a joke as that if property were equally divided it would promptly find its way back into the hands of the relatively few who are intrinsically superior.

One does not have to be a Socialist or a Communist, but only a believer in democracy—which should mean at least equality of opportunity, plus noblesse oblige on the part of the more powerful—to see and to say that the present order is neither fair to the average nor just to society.

Fight It Out

Fight that out as you see fit with any person whom you find responsibly intelligent enough, but let us here consider merely the spiritual aspect of it all. Which is the only really human aspect.

It is clear that society—which means ALL of us—should be concerned to conserve the capacity of each of us; if only for the general good.

Obviously, the totality can be no more than the sum of its parts. Therefore, human society can contain no more of strength or worth or power than exists and is developed in its members.

A Tennyson may bewail the fact that Nature is careless of the individual, though careful to preserve the type.

Precisely herein human nature must improve upon the Universal Mother; for we should be yearningly concerned to preserve the individual and to conserve and foster his native capacities.

Indeed, that is the essence of the meaning of democracy—which, after many centuries, will find expression in laws and institutions embodying our determination to make each person count for the utmost of which he is capable.

Duly, we shall not calculate the cost of securing the physical well-being of all by assuring that all are well born; and of promoting the maximum mental development, through really universal and thorough education, designed and efficient to call forth and organize all the latent powers of the individual.

The day will come, as surely as you are reading this, when the disgraceful figures will be reversed, that tell of ninety-two per cent. expenditure of our national income on war—past, present and prospective—and two per cent. on public welfare, including education!

That transformation is not really beyond us now; but is delayed by stupid selfishness and the failure to develop the community sense—that is, the common sense—which would let us see that dividends of strength will come to society from this type of enlightened self-interest.

Meanwhile, it is gratifying to note how much talent is found and conserved by a variety of social efforts under public auspices. Musical and other artistic gifts are thus fostered and made available to warm the general culture.

Even now our public schools are frequently responsible—under the watchful eye and sympathetic direction of really human teachers—for discovering the budding talent of many a poor youngster.

A Sample

As a specimen schoolroom product, you are asked to read the charming little essay written by Benjamin, an immigrant boy of ten, whose misspelling was brought to the writer's attention. Perhaps the typesetter will be unusually careful not to "improve" this observing young pupil's spelling and composition:

"The senieries in this room is exactly yet pretty good, for everybody is thinking is this lesson to do some better as some one else.

"And it is handsome together with the weather of today, what is nicely, the sun is most in the middle size of warm, what is sweetly to every one, a warm wind is blowing and bowing the heads of the trees, and often the wind games with leafs what looses it the trees, although the sky is bright with color of light blue mixed with smoke more as milk, about all is everything nicely."

It is an easy guess that young Benjamin will be a poet or a painter, if commercialism does not crush his little soul and an indifferent society makes him only another "hand" in some factory.

The talents of the young should be saved, for their own joy in living and for the social good.

Some day America will awake to the idea that our best and biggest and most profitable business would be the making of the finest men and women.

There they are—in potential existence—IN THE CHILDREN!
